Dear Little Tex.
Thus Goes the News.
Real Temporal Power.
Alas, Poor Trotzky.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

DEAR little Miss "Tex" Guinan is set free by a smiling, middle-aged jury.

The little lady earned a living, about $5,000 a week, as "the life and soul of a night club."

THAT club is as wet as the deepest spot in the Pacific.

Miss Guinan, with a slight trembling of her lower lip, told the great big, kind jurymen that she was only an employe, and didn't believe anybody was wicked enough to sell drinks in her neighborhood. She just tried to make people happy. That's all.

OUR jury system is a great protection for the rights of individual, especially the individual with curly hair and a trembling lip.

TO REPORTERS "that have been so good to me," Miss Guinan said: "Light up your life with a smile. Then see how much better you feel. Make your home a night club."

Many do just that; which, according to some clergymen, is part of our modern problem.

SOMEBODY mentioned to Miss Texas the name of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general lady, who puts lawbreakers in jail. Miss Guinan, smiling, said:

"Give Mabel my love."

Enforcement is one thing, apparently, that Miss Guinan does not take too seriously.

"EIGHTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS bullion seized by five bandits in New Jersey. Band holds up messenger near smelting plant and takes gold."

"Chicago bandits rob bank of $10,000."

"Detroit hijacker kills two gangsters."

"One shot, one stabbed after two parties."

So runs the news. The crime wave is not imaginary.

DETROIT'S unknown hijacker worked swiftly.

Earl Remington and Gordon Peter, racketeers and professional criminals, ran a "blind pig." The hijacker, name unknown, hijacked the "blind pig," took $400.

THE "blind pig" owners looked for the hijacker, to their sorrow found him dancing in a cabaret at 3:30 a. m., and invited him to the street. He went, killed them both. He shot one down, bent over his body, fired two more bullets into him to make sure, with many looking from windows, ran after the other and killed him. Then he climbed into his automobile and then drove slowly away. "No clue." Such is modern crime.

LETTERS to the White House from all over the country ask that the United States send an ambassador to the Pope, whose temporal power is recognized by the Italian kingdom.

No official statement has been made on the subject.

MEANWHILE an interesting incident emphasizes the increased influence of the Pope, under new conditions of temporal authority.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, now yachting on J. Pierpont Morgan's "Corsair" in the Mediterranean, had planned to visit Jerusalem. The Pope made known his objection to the proposed visit, and after a discussion between Mussolini and the British foreign secretary, Chamberlain, the Archbishop of Canterbury has "tactfully relieved a delicate situation" by agreeing not to go to Jerusalem.

TROTZKY is definitely barred from entering Germany. His exclusion is due to Catholic influence in the newly organized German cabinet.

This is considered a victory for Stresemann, and a setback for Socialists, who demanded Trotzky's admission.

THE former head of the Russian army and close associate of Lenin will remain, by compulsion, in Constantinople, writing against Stalin, his enemy in power. He says he needs German health baths, and that the climate and strange language of Constantinople will be the death of him.

PRESIDENT HOOVER writes a little article for the Yale Daily News, emphasizing the need of college-trained minds in state and national politics.

Fortunately for 100,000,000, minds not college-trained can also be useful, as proved by Abraham Lincoln, Thomas A. Edison, Henry Ford and some others.

It all depends on what is in the mind to start with. No college training can make much out of a vacuum. With or without college training, Hoover could be President.

JEFFERSONIAN DEMOCRATS SPLIT HERE

Dual honors will be paid to the memory of Thomas Jefferson by a divided Democracy in Pittsburgh tonight.

Two Jefferson Day dinners will be held and two United States Senators will be the speakers, but meetings will be far apart, and about the only point of agreement will be in their praise of the deeds of the author of the Declaration of Independence.

Independent women Democrats, with Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Senator from New York, as their honor guest, will hold a big dinner at the Roosevelt Hotel, carrying out a program which they have been working on for several months.

ANOTHER DINNER

At the same hour the Democratic county organization will hold a Jefferson dinner at the Fort Pitt Hotel, with Senator A. O. Stanley, of Kentucky, as the principal speaker.

The two Senators came to Pittsburgh this morning, each ignorant of the presence of the other until they chanced to meet in the lobby of the William Penn Hotel.

"Hello, Doc!" shouted the Kentucky statesman, as Senator Copeland emerged from the dining room after breakfast. "Making speeches?"

"Yes, Stanley," answered Dr. Copeland. "You—making speeches?"

"Yes; Jefferson Day, you know,

The melon will consist of the right to subscribe for two new shares of stock for each seven shares of stock now held, at $110 a share. At the closing price of 189½ a share for U. S. Steel common yesterday. This privilege to buy new stock at $110 a share, is worth $18 a share.

FRENCH WARSHIP BEARING HERRICK'S BODY ARRIVES

NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP.)—The body of Myron T. Herrick, late United States ambassador to France, was brought to his homeland today aboard the French cruiser Tourville.

An impressive tribute to the memory of Mr. Herrick was arranged to mark the transfer of the body from the cruisers to the train on which it will be taken late today to Cleveland, the diplomat's former home.

The French warship was escorted by the United States cruisers Marblehead and Cincinnati. They met the Tourville off Nantucket Lightship

City and state officials joined with representatives of the American and French governments to make up the party to meet the funeral ship and escort the body from the pier to the Grand Central terminal.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who was the guest of the late ambassador after his flight from New York, was among those for whom automobiles were provided in the funeral procession. Col. Lindbergh flew from Mexico City to pay tribute to the memory of his friend, arriving yesterday.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt issued a proclamation ordering flags on all state buildings at half staff and directing commanding officers of the National Guard and Naval militia to be present at the pier.

INMAN GETS DIVORCE DECREE

RENO, Nev., April 13.—Walker P. Inman, wealthy Duke tobacco fortune heir, early today was granted a divorce decree from Helene Garnet Patton Inman, daughter of an Indiana clergyman.

A jury returned a verdict in favor of Inman, who charged that his wife abandoned herself to liquor and other men.

GETS $15,000 YEARLY

Mrs. Inman contested the divorce and asked that she be given the decree and $250,000 alimony. Under the verdict Mrs. Inman will receive an annual allowance of $15,000 for five years. This was in accordance with a separation agreement made two years ago.

The decision, which came after six hours of deliberation, brought to an end three weeks of sensational testimony during which Inman, a son of Mrs. James B. Duke, widow of the tobacco magnate, produced several witnesses who testified to his wife's participation in drinking parties and escapades with other men.

JOHN STEELE NAMED

John Steele, singer, was mentioned often in the testimony as an ardent admirer of Mrs. Inman. Witnesses for the husband testified they had seen Mrs. Inman intoxicated on several occasions and referred to incidents aboard the Inman yacht in which Mrs. Inman and other men were mentioned.

Mrs. Inman charged cruelty in

Rain Prevents Frost, Fruit Trees Saved

Blossoming fruit trees were saved from predicted frost today by rain. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman had anticipated frost and a temperature of 35 degrees.

Cherry, pear, peach and plum blossoms were saved from an untimely end. So were lilacs, already bursting into purple bloom.

Adena Bank Closes Due to Slump In Ohio Coal

STEUBENVILLE, O., April 13.—The Peoples National Bank of Adena, which played the good Samaritan three years ago by taking over the Adena Commercial & Savings Bank when a crash impended, failed to open its doors today. The comptroller of the currency has taken charge, according to a posted notice.

The coal slump in Eastern Ohio is blamed indirectly for closing of the bank. Depositors had been making withdrawals at a rapid rate, it is said, since last October 4, when Henry Worthington, cashier, ended his life while an examination of his books, revealing a $3,000 shortage, was being made. The bank had total resources of $700,000. Depositors likely will not lose, according to bank examiners.

TREES RETURNS WITH BRIDE

To the quiet of a beautiful country estate, Joseph Clifton Trees, multi-millionaire oil operator, and his attractive young wife, formerly his secretary, have retired, their honeymoon ended.

Mr. Trees, 59, and Mrs. Trees, 35, spent three months in South America, it was learned today.

No longer is Miss Edith Lehm, of Dormont, the alert, efficient secretary of a figure whose name spells power in oil. Instead, she is the soft-spoken, gracious mistress of Treesdale Farm at Mars, one of the show places of the district.

Retiring, Mr. Trees settled quickly into his old routine today, saying simply, "I am glad to be back in Pittsburgh."

ALLIES DEMAND 24 BILLIONS

PARIS, April 13.—(AP.)—The Allies' bill to Germany for reparations for damages incurred in the World War was handed Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, in the tearoom of the Hotel George V this morning.

The size of the bill was not announced officially, but it was said generally it had a present value of from $10,000,000,000 to $12,500,000,000, calling for annuities over a period of 58 years totaling around 100,000,000,000 gold marks—about $24,000,000,000.

As the German delegation, headed by Dr. Schacht, entered the tearoom and the door closed behind them, the anteroom buzzed with talk that they were already aware of the amount of the claim and would reject it. Through courtesy

STRANGLER ROUTED BY SCREAMS

A noise in the bedroom of her apartment on the first floor at 221 Emerson street, East End, early today awakened Mrs. Sarah Ewing, 25.

Mrs. Ewing thought the moving figure was her husband, returned from work.

"What are you doing?" she asked calmly.

"Oh!" spoke the visitor. "So you're married!"

CHOKES OFF SCREAM

The intruder turned a flashlight on Mrs. Ewing.

She screamed. He choked her.

"Don't," she pleaded. "I'll give you money."

The choking continued. Again Mrs. Ewing screamed. Frightened, the visitor darted for the door.

ESCAPES BY WINDOW

Mrs. Ewing jumped from bed, banged the door on his hand. He yelled in pain and dashed from the house.

Aroused, Mrs. Ewing's father, William B. Stewart, left his bed on the third floor and rushed to his daughter's room as the prowler fled.

The burglar had entered through a window.

2 Killed, 3 Injured As Auto Hits Trolley

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—(AP.)—Two men were instantly killed and three others seriously hurt in a head-on collision between their automobile and a trolley car on the northern outskirts of the city.

The injured were all unconscious and none of the dead or injured had been identified two hours after the crash.

F. Downing, operator of the trolley, said he saw the automobile suddenly swerve toward him and was unable to stop before the motor struck the front of the trolley. The automobile telescoped.

Golf Links to Open Monday If Rain Ends

Unless heavy rains should continue the public golf links in Schenley Park will be opened at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Superintendent of Parks James Moore announced today.

The course was soggy today from rains of the last week and today, but play will be permitted if at all possible, Moore said. Opening of the course was postponed from last Monday because of the water-soaked condition of the links.

3 Children and Maid Die as Home Burns

KALAMAZOO, Mich., April 13.—(AP.)—Three small children of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy M. Curran and a maid were burned to death early today in a fire which destroyed the Curran residence. Curran barely escaped the flames as he rushed from the house for help.

Mrs. Curran is in a hospital here and was not told of the tragedy.

HENRY COLIN CAMPBELL

DRUGS BLAMED IN 'TORCH SLAYING'

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 12.—Narcotics were partly to blame for the tangled life of Henry Colin Campbell, it was revealed today as authorities continued to delve into the weird, neurotic makeup of the man whose arrest solved the slaying of Mrs. Mildred Mowry Campbell, Greenville (Pa.) widow. Mrs. Campbell's gasoline-drenched body was found aflame near Cranford, February 23.

CRAVED TOYS

Prosecutor A. J. Davis, of Union County, said Campbell had admitted habitual use of a narcotic to still the pain of a chronic ailment. To the use of drugs he united bigamy, and to both a strange craving for teddy bears and dolls. Scores of such toys were found in a strong box in his home.

Prosecutor Davis announced he would compel Campbell to stand trial for the murder of Mrs. Mowry by refusing to accept a plea of non vult. In New Jersey a non vult plea corresponds to a plea of guilty.

If convicted, Campbell will die in the electric chair.

Detectives, after examining the letters which Campbell wrote and received from middle-aged women who answered matrimonial advertisements, declared they would question Campbell concerning the

Dr. Butler May Undergo Operation

NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP.)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, may have to undergo an operation at Presbyterian Hospital, where he now is a patient suffering from inflammation of the gall bladder, with gall stones.

He was taken to the hospital Friday night for treatment and observation. His condition yesterday was reported "very satisfactory." Dr. Butler celebrated his 67th birthday on April 2.

Echo of 7 Killings In Garage Seen In 2 Murders

CHICAGO, April 13.—(INS.)—The bodies of two men, slain by bullets, were found in an automobile at the rear of the Western Hotel, in Cicero, today. They had been dead about 36 hours when found.

One of the victims has been identified as William Clifford, said to have had a long police record. The other body has not been identified.

The hotel formerly was headquarters for Al Capone, notorious gang chieftain. It is believed the men were killed elsewhere and their bodies hauled to the rear of the hotel.

Police saw in the dual murder an echo of the slaughter of seven members of George "Bugs" Moran's gang in a garage last February.

COAL DEAL FEES MAY PAY HEIRS

UNIONTOWN, April 13.—Friends of J. V. Thompson are freely predicting that his exile from the city where he lived virtually all his life and where he saw his millions mount and then fade, will end on or about May 1.

Options have been obtained on between 20,000 and 30,000 acres of coal land in Greene County for which Thompson is said to have a buyer. If the deal goes through, and persons who seem to know, say it can be delayed only in the failure to get additional options, Thompson's commission, it is said, will be far greater than the amount necessary to meet his obligations to the Emma Messmore and John Nicolls estates.

For the most part the options expire on April 30. A half dozen persons have been busy for several weeks securing the options from the various coal land owners, who include several Uniontown residents.

MAY PERMIT RETURN

The options are said to call for a payment of $10 an acre upon acceptance and the cash in full when the deeds are passed. For the most part the coal tracts are back from the river and adjoin the holdings of the H. C. Frick Coke Company and other large companies which have in part developed their fields.

Whether Thompson will direct the huge coal deal expected to reach the proportion of $10,000,000 from Cleveland, O., where he is said to have been making his headquarters, or whether he will be permitted to come back home to do so has not been determined. Sheriff Tom Aubrey has two bench warrants which call for the arrest and indefinite imprisonment of Thompson on sight. These warrants were issued when Thompson was declared in contempt of court following his failure to pay more than $400,000 to the heirs in the two estates. He entered a plea that he was "without funds."

The average price of the coal being optioned is about $200 an acre with some running as high as $250

NEW FEAR FELT ON POLICE BILL

While civic leaders urging reform of the coal and iron police system were arranging their greatest effort—a mass meeting in North Side Carnegie Music Hall tonight—the Musmanno bill, which would bring about reforms, was reported to be facing new obstacles in the Legislature today.

Vice chairmen for the meeting were announced as William B. Rodgers, Jr., a director of the Chamber of Commerce; George F. Kountz, president of the Allied Boards of Trade; Mrs. Helen Glenn Tyson, of the Women's International League

BEAVER CONGRESSMAN BACKS LOWER TAX ON WAGES

FARMER RUIN BLAMED ON DRY LAW

NEW YORK, April 13.—Prohibition has been a false friend and monumental gold brick for the American farmer, said Congressman Loring M. Black, of New York, in a statement yesterday setting forth the economic effects to the farming industry of the loss of its brewery and distillery markets.

Grain outputs of the farms which before the war went into the distilling and brewing industries, he continued, have, with the advent of prohibition piled up as a huge surplus that has destroyed the stability of the farmers' markets and brought the industry to the verge of bankruptcy.

Modification of the Volstead act, he asserted, will go a long way toward economic relief of the farmer, and serve to remove the causes that have led to a widespread demand in farming regions for equalization fees and other artificial stimulants to make up the losses.

FARMS HARDEST HIT

The farming business, he asserted, has suffered more seriously than any other industry from the effects of prohibition and the loss of markets and revenue through the suppression of the distilling and brewing industries. He said:

"Prohibition got its initial economic impetus in the Lever food control act. The great demand for grain for food during the war brought about, to a large extent, war prohibition as a food conservation measure. Then the Volstead act prevented a readjustment when the demand for American grain foods ended with the war.

"Farmers lost their foreign war market, and did not get back the brewery and distillery market. Farm experts have not stressed the disaster due to the loss of markets through the artificial means of prohibitory legislation, but have insisted upon the artifice of price-fixing through socialistic legislation.

"It is their proposal that one costly lobbied legislative proposal shall be solved by another error similarly stimulated."

CITES BIG TAX LOSS

Taking up the losses in public revenues, Black said that the tax on distilled spirits in 1919 was $365,-[illegible]2.26, and in 1927 it was $21,-[illegible]8.71. The tax collected on fermented liquors in 1919 was $117,839,-602.21, and in 1927 it was $883.25.

Prohibition enforcement in that time has required the expenditure of over $100,000,000, he said, while fines and penalties collected amount to $40,000,000. A considerable part of the tax loss and enforcement cost, he added, is coming from the pockets of the farmers.

The direct damage and loss is upon the farmers, however, through the loss of their grain market, he asserted. He estimated the loss last year to the farmers on their barley crop at $140,655,000, due to prohibition. The loss to them on this crop alone since the advent of prohibition, he declared, is $954,368,620.

"ANTI-GRAIN LAW"

Farm materials and commodities that went into the brewing business each year before prohibition were estimated by Black at $3,500,000,000. This revenue has been almost a total loss since the enactment of the Volstead act. He said further:

"Prohibition might well be called an anti-grain consumption law.

"Farmers were led years ago to believe that if they supported prohibition their taxes would be reduced by 80 per cent; that crime would disappear, and criminal court costs would be reduced. They were told that the jails would be emptied.

"Just the reverse has been true. The principal interest of the farmer in the prohibition question has been to get rid of the saloon in his own particular locality, which is something he could have done through local option. He had no idea when he was agitating a wider measure of prohibition he was paving the way for his own economic destruction."

Fugitive Out 23 Yrs., Wife Has Him Jailed

WHEELING, W. Va., April 13.—(AP.)—Edward Bailey, 54, who left the Ohio county jail 23 years ago without the sanction of the authorities, is back again as a guest of the county.

He was arrested at East Liverpool, O., several days ago after his wife had preferred a non-support charge. A perusal of the records revealed that he was wanted for breaking jail at Wheeling in 1906 while awaiting trial on a perjury charge.

TWO SENATORS VISITING CITY

SENATOR ROYAL S. COPELAND SENATOR A. O. STANLEY

U. S. Senators in Pittsburgh today. Arrival on the same day on different missions was entirely coincidental and neither knew the other was here. Dr. Copeland here peruses his column, a daily feature of the Sun-Telegraph (Page 8, today).

JEFFERSONIAN DINERS SPLIT

SPLIT SPOTLIGHT

Just then Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic organization state leader, superintending arrangements for the Ft. Pitt dinner, appeared on the scene and hastened to tell the Senators that they would no sit at the same table, that two Jefferson dinners would be held and—

"Oh, I see," laughed Senator Stanley, "you're dividing the publicity—two meetings, two sets of headlines, two columns of speeches, two picture layouts—I'll say you Pennsylvania Democrats know the ropes. More people will read about Jefferson and the sublime ideas of free government that the name of Jefferson stands for."

Mrs. Anne E. Felix, chairman of the entertainment committee for the independent Democratic women arranging the Roosevelt Hotel banquet, met Senator Copeland and escorted him to his hotel.

LUNCHEON GUEST

There at noon he was the guest at a luncheon given in his honor by leading independent Democrats, including Harrison Nesbit, Maj. E. Lowry Humes, A. M. Thompson, William N. McNair, George H. Stengel, Paul Sullivan, Martin Robinson, Charles A. Fagan and others.

Miss Frances Langfitt, president of the Women's Democratic Club, will be toastmistress. Others on the reception committee are Mrs. Charles Tierman, Mrs. Louis Walsh, Mrs. Ida Allen, Mrs. Susanna Scheif, Mrs. Charles Weidemann, Miss Stella Anstead.

Mrs. J. Wood Clark, county Democratic vice chairman, will call the organization dinner to order and Mrs. Carroll Miller will be toastmistress. Judge Montrose Strassburger, assistant corporation counsel of New York, will share the honors with Senator Stanley in the oratory.

COPELAND SEES LESS SMOKE

Pittsburgh manufacturers were highly commended for their fight against smoke by Dr. Royal S. Copeland, New York senator, who described the progress being made as a wonderful step for health.

The writer of the popular daily health feature, "How To Keep Well," on the Sun-Telegraph magazine page, here to fill a speaking engagement, described smoke as a robber of health.

"Smoke is bad because it robs the people of a natural element which is God-given to promote health," Dr. Copeland related. "That element is the ultra-violet ray. Science calls it a most important element. Therefore, with the smoke nuisence abated, more of these rays can filter into our daily life.

"Of course, the elimination of smoke is costly. Many improvements have been made for controlling this nuisance, but the installation means big investments to the manufacturers. The profit for this investment is more than earned, however, by the improved health of the workers. You know, chickens and animals cannot be kept healthy in dark places. So it is with the people. The smoke irritates the nostrils, throat and lungs and leads to such diseases as tuberculosis.

"But I certainly want to praise the results of the local efforts. It is very noticeable and vastly different than it was 10 or 15 years ago," Dr. Copeland pointed out.

HOUSE CHAPLAIN ATTACKS PASTORS AS POLICE SPIES

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP.)—The Rev. Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, has approved the attack by United States Attorney Camalier upon the use of paid police informers, with particular reference to those who identify themselves as "ministers of the Gospel."

In a letter to Camalier, Dr. Montgomery—who is pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church—declared that ministers of the Gospel were sufficiently occupied with their religious teachings and it is not their duty to enter into the affairs of state. His action followed a complaint by Washington ministers against Camalier's assault in which he asserted that the most of those who accept pay for acting as police spies were those who tell him they are pastors.

Dr. Montgomery said that "the hour has come when it is absolutely necessary for the church and the preacher to do the work for which they have been set apart." This work is peculiar and distinctive, he added, and "the sooner we learn that the high business of our calling is to lead men to realize that the great process of character building is the power of God, is not working without in restraint but working and inspiring within."

"Long since have I grown weary," he said, "of the pulpit trying to run the affairs of the state. To use an old term, let the preacher stick to his last."

GERMAN GIRL SCIENTIST TAKES Y. W. C. A. POST HERE

Fraulein Fridl Kutzner, Germany's foremost woman agriculturist, in Pittsburgh in her world-wide research work, has much to say of scientific farming, advanced horticulture and the new freedom of German women.

Being a woman—and one of exceptional charm and true Teutonic beauty—she talks first of the movement in the Fatherland for co-education and the agressiveness with which German girls are taking up men's work in the professions.

"German girls are competing with men on their own ground," declares Fraulein Kutzner, "but they are not masculine. They do not ape the mannish customs or the 'freedom' of American girls or those of England and France, and indeed few even bob their hair."

Although only 24, Franlein Kutzner has already won a reputation as one of German's leading agricultural directors. In Pittsburgh she is connected with the International Institute, 3525 Forbes street, where she will advise German immigrant girls who visit the institution, which is conducted through the Young Women's Christian Association.

for Peace and Freedom; Miss Laura D. Redick, of the Congress of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Lee Rosenthal, of the Congress of Jewish Women.

The bill's author, Representative M. A. Musmanno, of Allegheny County, was in Harrisburg shepherding the measure. He went, he said, to see that no errors in printing, which might invalidate the bill, would occur. But, also, it was reported, he was keeping an eye on a coalition said to be forming to defeat the measure when it comes up for final consideration Monday.

Musmanno was uncertain whether he would return to attend the mass meeting tonight. Attendance by leaders representing churches and others representing most of the civic organizations in the county was expected.

The Rev. Dr. William R. Farmer, of the Western Theological Seminary, was to preside. Among speakers scheduled were Representative Helen Grimes, the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, pastor of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church; the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Church; Maurice E. Scharss, president of the Civic Club, and Mrs. Carroll Miller.

An expression from Gov. John S. Fisher as to his attitude on the legislation, sought by the organization in a telegram to Harrisburg, will not be received to be read at the meeting, according to information obtained by telephone from the Governor's office today.

The telegram was received yesterday after the departure of the Governor for Washington, and will not come to his attention until his return Monday, his office advise.

An expression from Gov. John S. Fisher, to be read at the mass meeting, was requested by William L. Nunn, for the Pittsburgh branch, American Civil Liberties Union. In a telegram, Nunn asked the Governor to remove "suspicion" that he would tolerate "defeat of your own coal and iron police bill."

3 REBEL CHIEFS FLEE TO U. S.

NOGALES, Ariz., April 13.—(INS.)—The presence here today of three outstanding leaders of the Mexican revolution was seen as a severe blow to the rebel cause.

Gilberto Valenzuela, candidate for the presidency of Mexico and reputed ringleader of the revolution, was the last of three leaders to flee across the border and take refuge here.

He was preceded by Gen. Francisco Manzo, leader of the unsuccessful expedition against Mazatlan, and Gen. Jose Bernal, his second in command.

Valenzuela, accompanied by his family, reached the American Nogales shortly before last midnight. He is reported to have brought a large sum of money with him. He announced that he will leave for Los Angeles late today.

All three rebel commanders were said by American immigration officials to have claimed the right to enter the United States as political refugees.

The desertion of the cause by the three, the first deflection among the principal leaders, is said to have had a depressing effect at rebel headquarters across the border.

Chop Suey Bandits Latest; They Get $11

Jugoslavia Puts Ban On Josephine Baker

ZAGREB, Jugoslavia, April 13.—(AP.)—In order to prevent any further demonstrations by the Croatian students the government today forbade any more performances at local theaters of Josephine Baker, Harlem Negro dancer. Her semi-nude appearances aroused considerable public indignation.

RESCUED FLIERS WEAK FROM STARVATION

SYDNEY, N. S. W., April 13.—(AP.)—First direct word from the missing airmen of the "Southern Cross" was received at Sydney today in messages signed by C. P. Ulm, pilot. His few crisp words gave an inkling of the suffering which the crew of the plane has undergone since forced down on March 31 while en route from Sydney to Wyndham.

"We have been through a terrible time, but will be returning to recondition the Southern Cross for the flight to England."

This was the first message signed by Ulm. It was addressed to Chairman Garlick, of the Sydney Citizens' Fund, through which part of the two weeks' search for the missing men had been conducted.

DRAMATIC MEETING

In this same message, Ulm asked Garlick to convey in behalf of himself, Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and their two companions, "heartfelt thanks to the citizens of Sydney for all they have done for us."

The message was telegraphed from Derby, having been carried there by a Heath Airways plane. The plane had made a landing near the Southern Cross, which was discovered yesterday near Port George. There was a dramatic meeting when the rescue machine reached the castaways.

After a short stay with the castaways, the rescue plane returned to Derby bearing the messages to the outside world.

A message from Pilot Ulm addressed to his wife said:

"All o. k., but still very weak from starvation."

A third message was addressed to the parents of Capt. Kingsford-Smith. It read:

"All o. k. Returning to Sydney for overhaul."

The rescue plane Canberra previously had dropped 14 bags of provisions to the fliers who were forced down March 31 while attempting a flight from Sydney to Wyndham. Tobacco and a revolver were also included, along with 85 telegrams from friends and well-wishers.

SEARCHERS LOST

When the Canberra arrived at Derby Capt. Holden, its pilot, said he had learned by means of signals that the Southern Cross was not damaged but needed only petrol and oil.

Public joy at the discovery has been tempered by the disappearance of Lieut. Keith Anderson and Robert Hitchcock who have not been heard from since they started out on the search in an airplane several days ago.

INMAN GRANTED DIVORCE

her counter-complaint, one of her principal accusations being that Inman broke her nose in a fight. She also declared that she had not been accepted by Inman's relatives because she had neither wealth nor social position.

DANCER INVOLVED

The name of Juva Marconi, dancer, who remained in Reno after obtaining a divorce recently from Lloyd Phipps, was brought into the case when Inman was questioned about his friendship for her. He admitted taking the dancer to dinner and inviting her and a small son to his apartment, but denied that he was in love with her or that he planned to wed her.

Mrs. Inman contended her husband was to blame for her addiction to liquor. She testified he always kept a large supply in the home and that he drank constantly. He admitted drinking steadily, but denied that it was harmful and pointed to his airplane pilot's license to show that he had passed rigid physical examinations.

MARTIN LAUDS GAS TAX IN TALK HERE

Disapproval of use of bond money for roads was voiced by Edward Martin, auditor general of Pennsylvania and Republican state chairman, in an address here last night in support of the gasoline tax as one of the greatest sources of revenue in the United States.

Speaking at a meeting of the Independent Gasoline Dealers' Association of Allegheny County in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce, Martin questioned the propriety of using bond moneys for anything but "objects of the most durable nature, such as public buildings."

"Roads are not permanent; they wear out," he said.

CITES BOOSTS ELSEWHERE

Martin did not refer to the four-cent gasoline tax pending in the Legislature, but pointed out that many states have increased the tax or contemplate an increase. All the states excepting Illinois and practically all of Canada and Mexico now impose a gasoline tax, Martin said, in tracing the growth of the tax since it was first discussed in Oregon in 1918.

"Nearly all states agree that the proceeds should be used for road building and maintenance," he said.

James F. Malone, president of Council, declared that Pittsburgh must devise means of having distributed to it by the state a portion of the tax collected here for motor vehicle operation, particularly as the Legislature in session has failed to make any such provision. The revenue of the city is diminishing, and it would be impracticable and unjust to impose a heavier burden on real estate, he said.

CITY TO SPEND $4,500,000.

Pittsburgh during 1929 will spend about $3,000,000 for paving and resurfacing streets and about $1,500,000 for police protection and a traffic system, Malone asserted. Paving and resurfacing of streets in 1922 cost less than $400,000 when the city had more sources of revenue, he stated, tracing the rapid development of streets and highways in recent years.

George P. Kountz and Oliver Wright also were speakers at the meeting, at which Robert K. Boyer, president of the association, presided. Attorney Artemas C. Leslie introduced Martin.

Weather Conditions.

The lake region low moved very slowly during the last 24 hours, resulting in continued cloudy weather, and light rains over the Northeast. It is now centered over Ontario, north of Lake Huron. It is raining in the lower Mississippi valley and West Gulf states, and as far north as Kansas, due to falling barometer in that section. The center of the Southwest disturbance is over Utah.

High pressure covers the Atlantic and East Gulf Coast states, with clear skies south of Pennsylvania, and light frost in West Virginia, Virginia, Eastern Tennessee and Western North Carolina. Pressure is also relatively high over the Central Plains states. For the country as a whole, the temperature changes were slight.

River Conditions.

There is a rise of a few tenths of a foot in the upper Allegheny River, and in the Beaver River. Elsewhere the rivers are falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 7.0; Lock No. 7, 13.3; Pittsburgh, 16.8; Dam No. 2, 8.7; Dam No. 8, 16.5; Dam No. 9, 16.9, and Dam No. 12, 16.3. The rivers will change but little, with a tendency towards falling.

Favors Tax Cut

an acre and other tracks below the $200 mark, Thompson's commission in the deal is expected to run between a half and three-quarters of a million dollars.

It has been hinted that the heirs of the Messmore estate previously had agreed to accept less than $100,000 for their claims, which aggregate more than twice that amount. This compromise is said to have been offered in case Thompson made the payments last December, but it has not yet been ascertained whether the agreement has been renewed.

The Princess of Thurn and Taxis, daughter of the late John Nicolls, is the chief litigant against Thompson, her uncle. She is suing for money bequeathed to her and her three sons by a former marriage. Thompson is said to owe this estate more than $200,000, and it is believed doubtful if the princess would settle for much less. A substantial payment, however, might lessen the tension and cause the exile order to be rescinded so that the former coal baron could return to Uniontown.

PURCHASER UNKNOWN

No one has as yet been able to risk a guess as to the purchasers of the Greene County coal. It is indicated in some quarters that the consummation of the deal will be followed by an industrial resumption in that section of Western Pennsylvania.

Unsecured creditors of Thompson will lose nearly $30,000,000 as a result of their generosity to the former coal king during the days preceding his financial crash, it is estimated.

Thompson borrowed between $17,000,000 and $18,000,000 without any legal security other than a promise to pay, it is said. At the time of these transactions his word was considered golden and thousands of persons were ready and eager to place their money in such a way as to get big returns. Then came the crash. Effects of the failure still are felt.

With the payment of only 10 per cent of the unsecured claims and the promise of an additional two per cent which is expected to be declared on April 16, about $2,140,000 of the $17,000,000 to $18,000,000, allegedly borrowed from nearly 3,000 persons will have been paid back. Including the accrued interest for 14 years the unsecured creditors are estimated to have lost about $30,000,000 with no chance of ever getting a cent other than the 12 per cent.

ALLIES DEMAND 24 BILLIONS

to the Allied delegates, however, they were expected to go through the fiction of studying it for a day or so.

The document was read both in English and French, after which, without comment or discussion, it was decided to adjourn until Monday morning, when a detailed discussion of the plan and figures will begin.

The presentation of the bill came after nine years of bickering as to its size between the Allied creditor nations and Germany, the debtor. It represented a reduction, it was believed, of nearly $100,000,000,000 under the maximum of $125,000,000,000 claimed by the Allies before the Versailles conference.

3 COUNTIES JOIN DRIVE FOR CUT

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., April 13.—Dr. J. Howard Swick, representative in Congress from the Beaver-Butler-Lawrence district, has come out for prompt action by the Federal authorities in the downward revision of the tax on earned incomes.

Congressman Swick's statement, issued today, incorporates the sentiment expressed by business executives, bankers, merchants and professional men throughout the great Beaver Valley industrial district. In New Castle and West Pittsburgh as well as in the Beaver Falls-New Brighton section commercial and civic organizations as well as individual citizens have indorsed the movement for a lighter federal tax burden on wage earners.

INDORSED EVERYWHERE

The effort that has been put forth by the Sun-Telegraph for a downward revision of income tax has attracted wide interest here. Readers of the Sun-Telegraph voluntarily have signed petitions and circulated these among their friends. The result is that an extensive canvass has been made in the Beaver Valley region and everywhere indorsements have been given to the movement.

Congressman Swick's statement follows:

"Representing as I do a very highly industrialized district, with many wage earners, it seems only right that I should favor a revision downward of the tax on earned incomes.

HELD AID TO PROSPERITY

"These wage earners should be encouraged to buy homes and maintain a high standard of living in keeping with American traditions. They will thus become the most useful components of an outstanding industrial community. Business and professional men practically are a unit in their desire for a reduction of the tax on earned incomes."

The Beaver Valley industrial district, it is pointed out, has a population of nearly 1,000,000 and is contiguous to a commercial area of more than 5,000,000 inhabitants. The Beaver Valley furnishes a large percentage of the buying power in this area and less taxation upon these wage earners is looked upon as a measure pointing toward the greater prosperity of the entire region.

'TORCH SLAYER' DRUG ADDICT disappearance of women in half a dozen towns and cities.

REAL DR. JEKYLL, MR. HYDE

They believe from an examination of this correspondence that Campbell has married at least one and possibly more women for their money and then either deserted them or left them to some other fate.

The admittedly warped mind or Campbell was the object of interest of physicians, and alienists as he sat in a cell and smoked cigarets incessantly.

His case presented to the medical men one of the first authentic "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" cases in the annals of New Jersey criminology.

Campbell maintained his home here with his wife and four children in respectability. He was kind, considerate and loving to his wife and family.

After wedding Mrs. Mowry and taking her life savings—a mere $1,000—from her, he pressed an automatic pistol to her head as she slept and killed her. He then soaked her clothes in gasoline and touched a match to her body.

Mrs. Arminta Jackson, a sister of Mrs. Mowry, is expected to arrive here tonight from her home in Fallston, Pa., to claim the body. It is thought burial probably will take place somewhere in the neighborhood of Elizabeth.

RUM SALES ON U. S. LINERS TO BE QUIET AND DIGNIFIED

NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP.)—Wine cards on the dining tables, as well as public bars, will be taboo aboard ships of the United States Lines, Inc., new owners of the Leviathan and 10 other American boats.

This was made clear by Joseph E. Sheedy, general manager, who put the liquor-for-sale policy aboard the ships into effect. The sale of alcoholic beverages will be carried out in as unostentatious a manner as possible.

A schedule of prices will not be established, he said, until an average can be found, but it will compare favorably with that of competitors.

Opposition to the view that sale of liquor aboard ships is necessary in order to operate at a profit was voiced today by Capt. Robert Dollar, head of the Dollar Steamship Line, operators of round-the-world cruises.

He said the success of his ships operating under a dry policy was sufficient evidence that dry ships could be profitable ships.

WINNER OF THRIFT GIFT TELLS VALUE OF SAVING

"My bank account was certainly a blessing when we had our auto accident."

This terse but eloquent testimonial to the value of thrift was paid by Mrs. Edna Bigelow, of 2003 Sarah street, South Side, recipient of a $10 thrift award from the Sun-Telegraph. Mrs. Bigelow has passbook No. 16,616 in the Fourteenth Street Bank.

Mrs. Edna Bigelow

"I was sick for more than two years, and unable to earn anything. Things would have gone a great deal harder for me if I had not had a bank account."

The foregoing was the tribute of W. A. Hough, of Banning, Pa., to the importance of saving. Mr. Hough has received a $15 award as holder of passbook No. 5,125 in the First National Bank at Pittsburgh.

"As you advance in years it is a comfort to know that, thanks to your having saved some money, you will not have to ask anyone to take care of you."

That was what Mrs. Julia Coyne, 1304 Muriel street, South Side, said, when asked what thrift meant to her. Mrs. Coyne has passbook No. 1,266 in the First National Bank of Birmingham. She has been rewarded for her thrift with a check for $5 deposited to her credit by the Sun-Telegraph.

Miss Marian Becker, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred K. Becker, 1400 Grandin avenue, Dormont, has received a $5 thrift gift as holder of book No. 2,251 in the Dormont Savings and Trust Company.

Bath Ends Murder Suspect's "Coma"

SCRANTON, Pa., April 13.—(AP.)—Ralph Russell Sloat, who collapsed in court Wednesday just before he was to take the stand in his own defense for the murder of John Lowry, taxicab driver, was revived at the county jail yesterday through the simple expedient of being given a cold shower bath.

Sloat, who has been in a state of coma for 48 hours, was placed under the cold shower and in a few minutes regained consciousness. Returned to his cell, Sloat broke down and wept. While Sloat would not admit he had been shamming, prison authorities were inclined to that belief.

Girls Hurt in Fatal Crash Sue Driver

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 13.—Suits for damages totalling $40,000 were instituted here against Chauncey T. Frazier, by two Wheeling girls and their parents, for injuries suffered in an accident which occurred while they were riding in Frazier's car. Harold Minnick, of New Bethleham, student at Washington and Jefferson College, was killed in the mishap. Frazier and the girls were hurt seriously.

Mr. and Mrs. Wencel Check, in behalf of themselves and daughter, Martha, ask $28,000, and Mr. and Mrs. Harluf Lindelof and daughter Betty claim $12,000. Frazier was held for involuntary manslaughter at an inquest.

BABCOCK STILL SILENT ON ROW

County Commissioner E. V. Babcock had no comment to make today on the public apology made yesterday by Commissioner C. C. McGovern for McGovern's striking Babcock at the close of a Commissioners' meeting Thursday. In a statement to the newspapers, McGovern said he was sorry for the attack upon Babcock and said he would make a personal apology to the latter at the earliest opportunity.

Fully recovered from the effects of the hard blow on the chin, Babcock was at work in his private office in the Frick Building today. There are many speculations as to what the next move in the feud between the two men will be, but so far Babcock has not indicated whether he intended taking action against McGovern or whether he intended to drop the affair.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 13.—(AP.) — Countess Margot Bethlen, wife of the Premier, last night produced for the first time her new drama, "The Gray Dress," and achieved an instant success. The entire diplomatic corps and leading members of the government and nobility attended. The Countess intends to take the play to America.

Horse on Bridge Holds Fast Train 45 Minutes

POTTSVILLE, Pa., April 13.—(AP.)—The crack Wilkes-Barre-Philadelphia flyer of the Pennsylvania Railroad was nearly an hour off schedule last night, but H. H. Kirschner, a farmer living near Auburn, still possesses his normal quota of horses.

The flier left Wilkes-Barre on time and pulled out of the local station on the dot. It was on time when it reached the bridge over the Schuyikill River a quarter-mile below Auburn, but there the engineer had to decide whether the schedule would be ignored or Kirschner would need a new horse.

The animal, which had wandered away from its barn, had reached the bridge first and was using the flier's track. The owner couldn't prevail upon the horse to get off the bridge or even off that particular track. So the fast passenger train parked at one end of the bridge for 45 minutes until a section crew was summoned and finally succeeded in pulling the animal to less precarious territory.

CATTS SURRENDERS, GIVES BOND; RIDICULES CHARGE

MARIANNA, Fla., April 13.—(AP.)—Former Governor Sidney J. Catts surrendered yesterday to a United States commissioner here and made bond of $17,500 for his release on charges of aiding and abetting an alleged counterfeiting ring.

Florida's war-time governor and Baptist minister came here from his home at Defuniak Springs and went to the office of United States Deputy Marshal B. G. Stanley, who escorted him to the office of Commissioner W. H. Milton, where bond was posted.

Catts seemed confident that he would be vindicated when his case is called for trial at the next term of court. Five thousand dollars of his bond was made returnable at the Miami term of court April 22, while the other $12,500 secured his appearance at the court in Tampa in September.

"The charge of counterfeiting $100 bills is especially ridiculous," Catts said.

Catts was indicted recently by a federal grand jury at Jacksonville on charges of having furnished $5,000 to an alleged counterfeiting Julian Diaz, Tampa attorney.

Cautious Burglar Pays Out Dime, Nets $200

It cost a cautious burglar a dime to steal $200 worth of jewelry from the home of Mrs. A. Dempsey, 142 East Fourth avenue, Homestead, yesterday, according to police. They were told that just before the burglary was discovered a man approached Mrs. Dempsey's young son in the street near his home, and asked him if his parents were in the house. Then, police say, he gave the boy a dime for a negative answer.

The men, former members of the crews of Byrd's ships, the New York and the Eleanor Bolling, arrived with praise for their famous leader and tales of thrilling battles with the icy elements "down under." They are back in America for a "brief respite," as they termed it, and to await orders to rejoin the expedition "as soon as the ice pack breaks." They wil disband here and return to their homes pending further instructions.

The party was headed by Lieut. Harry Adams, retired naval officer, and included Lyle Womack, former husband of Ruth Elder.

Girl Evangelist Warns Texas Of Hereafter

Texas (Hello, Sucker!) Guinan, lady of the night clubs, and Uldine Utley, child evangelist, appearing at Memorial Hall, have different ideas about theology.

Acquitted of conducting a nuisance (night club) in New York, Texas philosophized, "There's somebody higher up takes care of such things."

To her Pittsburgh audience last night the young Uldine warned: "Texas Guinan may get by in the eyes of the courts, but she cannot get by the searching eyes of God. . . . 'She that liveth in pleasure is already dead while she liveth.'"

TEXAS' VERDICT IRES WHALEN

NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP.)—Aroused by the acquittal in Federal Court of Texas Guinan, Police Commissioner Whalen, in an address last night, advocated a law forbidding employment of hostesses in night clubs.

He declared the night club atmosphere to be a "vicious one and said that the demand for girls between 16 and 18 for hostesses was so great as to create a serious moral situation.

Although he did not mention Miss Guinan by name, he said the publicity given the trial of a night club hostess this week "was an affront to law and order."

"This question of a night club hostess is a very serious one," he added. "It is becoming close to something else long since driven out of this community, and the young girls who read of this case will be led on by the publicity given her 'heroism.'

The Commissioner spoke before the newly organized church laymen's committee of the greater New York Federation of Churches. He said he hoped the federation would get behind a movement to have a law enacted prohibiting employment of night club hostesses in New York. Miss Guinan was acquitted of a charge of maintaining a nuisance through sale of liquor at a club where she was hostess.

BOYS ELECTED TO RULE DAY IN DORMONT

A burgess and seven councilmen were chosen at a special election in Dormont yesterday.

But they will serve in office only one day—May 2.

The reason is that the successful candidates are not regular politicians, but students at Dormont high school, to whom the reins of the borough government will be given for "Boys' Day in Citizenship."

The election of the students resulted in these winners:

For burgess, Sanford Corcoran, 318 votes; for council, Robert McGiffin, 501; Woods Stoner, 454; Louis Aiken, 451; Langford Dobbins, 400; Richard Brown, 380; Robert Becker, 348, and Robert Holmes, 345. There were three candidates for the office of burgess, and 12 for council.

Two voting machines, furnished by Senator Frank J. Harris, were used, and 691 boys and girls voted. The election took place in the Dormont High School.

Charles Chamberlin, president of Dormont council, chairman of the "Boys' Day in Citizenship" committee, supervised the election and was assisted by Prof. Ralph Radcliffe, superintendent of Dormont schools; Russell L. Church, and other members of the school faculty.

Boys' Week, sponsored by the Dormont Chamber of Commerce, will be observed from Friday, April 27, to May 3. On May 2, the newly-elected borough officials will take the reins, and run the town.

CARNEGIE PENSION HEAD DENIES MISMANAGEMEN

NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP.)—Reduction in pen payments under the $30,000,000 Carnegie Foundation for Advancement of Teaching was the subject of controversy day.

Monell Sayre, former pension expert of the foundation and international authority on the subject, charged in an address at Columbus, O., last night that "extraordinary ineptitude" of the management has brought the organization to a state of virtual bankruptcy.

This charge, however, met with denial from Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, the foundation's president, who declared the modification policy simply a readjustment to meet changing salary conditions in the teaching profession.

CITES 1915 SITUATION

Mr. Sayre said that in 1915, 10 years after establishment of the foundation by Andrew Carnegie with a gift of $10,000,000, it "in effect confessed bankruptcy" by repudiating promises of pensions to professors then under 48 years of age. It was able to continue its promises to those over that age, he said, an additional gift of $15,000,000 from the Carnegie Foundation.

"When the foundation reorganized from this first bankruptcy in 1915," he said, "it, of course, gave assurance that every scientific step had at least been taken to render impregnable the promises which it still continued to assume.

"But now the foundation has at this Easter season of 1929 made a statement which means a second bankruptcy.

3,600 TO LOSE

"Approximately 3,600 professors not yet in receipt of pensions are to have their pensions 'recalculated' on a new basis. This 'recalculation' means another drastic repudiation of promises. The persons involved are peculiarly to be pitied, because they are professors too near the age of retirement to change their financial plans for old age."

Mr. Sayre spoke at a dinner of the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ in connection with its campaign for $8,000,000 to establish a pension system for ministers of Christian churches.

Mr. Pritchett, in his reply, said the Foundation will distribute between 45 and 50 millions of dollars in pensions during the next 36 years.

"Its rules," he said, "have never been contractual and have always made clear the fact that great changes in the compensation of teachers would necessitate readjustments from time to time in the pension scheme.

"During the past few years salaries of college teachers have more than doubled, and the rules have been readjusted to this great rise in salary by the use of a fixed scale which will not vary in the future."

THAT'S SOPHIE FOR YOU, JUST THROWING THE JEWELS ALL AROUND

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

HOLLYWOOD, April 13.

IT'S none of my business, of course, but word reaches this flicker bureau that Bess Meredyth, writer of screen stories, has gone parcheesi haywire. Parcheesi claims the same relation to tiddle-di-winks as casino does to solitaire. Bess, saith an authority, wins practically every game against all comers. Furthermore, she plays with her own set in her own home. As said before, however, it's none of my business, but this dark peek into the grim side of life should be a warning to innocent souls venturing into town.

Charles Buddy Rogers has a 17-year-old brother now in his senior year at the Olathe High School in Ditto, Kan. The brother is named Bh (Capital B and small h). Sorta an initial compromise. Mr. Rogers is Yclept Bert Henry. The Rogers' didn't want to call their second son Junior, so they hit upon the odd mating of letters. Be that as it may, Bh has been selected by his high school to play the leading role in the senior class play. In his booky days Buddy was selected for it. His sister also had a leading role when she graduated. Buddy hopes to make it home for Bh's graduation. If he doesn't, the youngster will be miserably disappointed. He's crazy about his electric-lighted brother.

Diamonds Make Her Arms Tired

THE following is clipped from an English publication:

"A little while ago, a movie actress sought the director of the company for which she works.

"'I fear I shall have to take a holiday. My arms are always so tired,' she said.

"The director elevated his eyebrows.

"'They wouldn't be if you didn't wear so many diamond rings,' he retorted."

The Peggy Hopkins Joyce union please R. S. V. P.

Which reminds me of Sophie Tucker at ye Montamartre 'tother noon. Sophie was rigged out in lightsome green glad rags with quite a few glitterers service-striping her wrist. A bracelet fell into her lap. Whereupon Sophie retrieved it with "That's Tucker for you. Just throwing the jewels around."

Incidentally, she hits the voodvil [illegible] San Francisco on the dou[illegible]ck. Two weeks of footlight [illegible] en to New York, where a [illegible] outfit has a play ready for [illegible] optiks. If Sophie likes it, she'll remain in Manhattan and strut stellar stuff on the Rialto. If not, she'll return to the outloud colony in six weeks and don grease paint for her next Vitaphone, as yet in the throes of birth control.

Actress Dines With Prince

LYA De PUTTI writes from London that she is having a grand time. Um. She dined with Prince George, only this time there were no newsreel cameras. George is evidently a lad with a one track mind. If Hollywood is denied him he waits until it comes to him. Lya may remain abroad for more than one flicker. But she'll be back. There's some one waiting for the fraulein in New York.

OH, LINDY!

Perhaps it's because his fiance, Anne Morrow, calls him Augustus. You decide.

Scene: A Los Angeles Airport. A certain W. K. movie star who has his pilot's license was on the field when Col. Charles Augustus Lindbergh taxied in. He was introduced to Lindy by an official, who later lunched with the "Long Eagle." the flicker-ite doesn't go in for autographs, but he wanted Lindy's. So he waited around for about two hours and hailed the Colonel as he prepared to get into his ship. He asked him to autograph his pilot's license. Lindy turned his back and maneuvered into the 'plane with a:

"I never autograph anything on the field. Come to my office if you wish it."

His office happens to be 3,000 miles away in New York.

Oh, Augustus.

Alice May Put "Alice" in Film

SCREENALITIES: Some talk that ALICE WHITE may screenize "Alice In Wonderland" for F. N. This charming story has always been MILDRED DAVIS LOYD'S pet screen ambition. But I suppose it'll never be produced on the grounds that the publik isn't interested in animal pictures anymore. . . They do be saying that PAT ROONEY, III, and WINNIE LAW, were so upset over Pat's departing for the East that at a farewell party, tendered Pat by HOOT GIBSON, the couple sat on the steps and wept. . . . WILLIAM BOYD, who shares Broadway honors with LOUIS WOLHEIM in "What Price Glory?" is in town. This Bill Boyd musn't be confused with Pathe's Bill Boyd . . . DOROTHY SEBASTIAN is interested in painting. Hear tell she splashes with appreciative results . . . . JIMMY CREELMAN, play and screenwright, has returned from an exhilarating jaunt to New York. Exhilarating because Jimmy sold two plays to stage producers whilst there. He trekked to MR. and MRS. PAUL SLOAN'S home 'tother eve and, the subject contrating on music, Jimmy remarked he strummed a guitar. Paul promptly called his bluff. But sure nuff, he did, so Jimmy, Paul and Mrs. Sloan—she at the piano and singing—treated themselves to an evening of Italian folk songs. I tell you, this Hollywood is plenty wild. . . . . BEBE DANIELS, cutting her lunch short to rush to a piano lesson. Bebe is also studying voice, from the same teacher MARION DAVIES studies with. . . . And that's all.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP.)—The number of motor vehicles registered in the United States rose to 24,493,124 last year, the Bureau of Public Roads announced today, placing the increase over 1927 at 1,359,883 or 5.9 per cent.

The figure, based on state registration reports, covered automobiles, taxis, busses, motor trucks and road tractors, but did not include 148,169 trailers and 117,346 motorcycles.

Don Alvardo and Lily Damita go in for a lot of romantic stuff in the picturization of Thornton Wilder's novel, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey."

And here Clara Bow depicts "how to get your man" in the best movie style. The gentleman involved is Robert Castle.

Sweethearts in real life, Lupe Velez and Gary Cooper combined business with pleasure during their featured portrayals in "Wolf Song."

Pittsburgh music lovers should have crowded Carnegie Music Hall last night to hear one of the most important events that have to do with our music life, the orchestra from Pittsburgh High School, and the treble chorus from Henry Clay Frick Elementary School. Somehow, the audience of parents and teachers did sense the fact that there was something finer than children's fiddling and singing in the concert, and gave the performers a good round of applause.

The orchestra played full scores, no simplified arrangements, and the music was from the best writers, as the program discloses. To hear the warmth of tone in the horns, and to watch the bowing in the strings, reveals musicians far in advance of amateur playing.

The work of the chorus was even more thrilling. Absolute uniformity of tone, a superb diction (which we cannot associate with veteran choruses), good rhythm, and quality of emotion that would move a heart of stone are the characteristics of this young band of troubadors. If Hugo Wolf or Frederick Handel could hear these children in the Song of Weyla or the lovely air from "Semele," they would rise from their tombs and bow their thanks.

Will Earhart and Oscar Demmler conducted the orchestra, and Antoinette Canfield led the chorus. Marjorie Sweet played piano accompaniments. The first violinist, Charles Pallos, should be mentioned especially.

MUSIC, TALK ON STAGE, SCREEN

Ziegfeld's musical comedy success, "Rio Rita," is to be shown in the Nixon for a week, beginning Monday evening. It will be presented by the organization that scored success in the Nixon earlier in the season.

Manager John Reynolds reports that the advance sale for "Hello Yourself," next week's attraction in the Alvin, is unusually heavy. This is credited to the popularity of Waring's Pennsylvanians, a feature of the show.

The final performance of "The Big Pond" will be given by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt today. "The Silent House" will be next week's attraction.

LaVilla Maye, featured soubret in "Nite Life in Paris," Mutual burlesque opening in the Academy with a Sunday night show, came to America from France several years ago.

LUPE VELEZ STARRED

Sweethearts both off and on the screen, Gary Cooper and Lupe Velez are starred in Paramount's production, "The Wolf Song," which comes to the Stanley Monday.

Richard Dix comes to the Penn screen Monday in "Redskin." There will be a stage presentation, featuring Teddy Joyce.

Monday will mark the opening of the third week for "The Broadway Melody," in the Aldine.

The Seven Nelsons will be one of the vaudeville attractions in the Harris next week. On the screen will be Eddie Quillan, Pittsburgh boy, in "Noisy Neighbors."

Vaudeville in the Sheridan Square next week will include Seed and Austin in their fun act, "Success." The screen features will be Victor McLaglen in "Strong Boy" and "The Sin Sister," with Nancy Carroll.

FILMS OPEN TODAY

It is claimed by technical experts that the voice of Jeanne Eagles, heard in Paramount's all-talking production, "The Letter," is one of the best recording feminine voices in talking pictures. "The Letter" opens today in the Grand.

Texas Guinan's Broadway Club has been reproduced in "Queen of the Night Clubs," which opens on the Enright screen today.

D. W. Griffith, noted director, gave both Colleen Moore and Neil Hamilton, who are in "Why Be Good," opening in the Regent today, their first screen opportunities.

Lily Damita, the French actress brought to this country by Samuel Goldwyn, plays opposite Ronald Colman in "The Rescue," which comes to the Liberty today.

Neighbors Call Police During Film Holdup

HOLLYWOOD, April 13.—Staging a daylight holdup, even when you have moving picture cameras along, is a hazardous undertaking when you choose a fashionable neighborhood for the synthetic banditry.

Sidney Franklin, shooting scenes for "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," in the exclusive Pasadena district, raced his holdup car up and down a street lined with pretentious homes, confident that a city permit was all the protection he needed against interruption.

Alarmed householders, however, telephoned the police station and demanded an investigation.

"They may be having those cameras with them as 'blinds' for a real holdup," one cautious citizen reported and in a few moments a cavalcade of motorcycle officers were on the job.

To prevent further molestation and to allay the fears of householders, the officers remained with the Franklin company until they returned to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio at the end of the day's work.

WARNER IN BIG FILM DEAL

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 13.—(INS.)—A giant amalgamation of all of the United Artists holdings into one corporation and a later merger with Warner Brothers in a $60,000,000 transaction, was foreseen here with preparations being made by owner members of all groups concerned to go to New York.

The party going East to negotiate for the financing of the deal, it is believed, will be headed by Joseph Schenck, president and chairman of the board of directors of United Artists; Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Samuel Goldwyn, Gloria Swanson and D. W. Griffith.

They are expected to leave Sunday afternoon, or soon thereafter, it is said. Charles Chaplin will not be a member of the party, it was announced.

At the Chaplin studio it was declared the comedian was not interested in the amalgamation or merger deals and would remain in Hollywood to work on his current picture. This probably means that Chaplin will withdraw from the group and sell his product on the open market, it is said.

Kennywood Opens Season Tomorrow

The first crowds will find new improvements awaiting them. The first dance of the season will be held next Saturday night and picinics will begin May 16. Until the latter date, the park will be open only on Saturday nights for dancing and Sundays for amusements and family picnic gatherings.

Sign This Petition and Help to Cut Taxes

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

the Congress of the United States:

the undersigned respectfully le that the Congress of the ted States give immediate con ration to the proposition that e be a downward revision of ncome taxes on all earned in es such as salaries or fees, or missions for personal services. urge this because of the many nces where wage or fee or nission earners sometimes just a few years of good incomes and prior to and after that period have substantially less incomes. Their period of better earnings which might give the average wage earner a chance to accumulate some capital is heavily taxed and they seldom have a new opportunity which might tend to make more useful citizens of them.

Labor in general, lawyers, doctors, architects, clerical workers, salesmen, dentists, engineers, journalists, accountants, actors, motion picture actors, singers, musicians and all the other professional people are in the same plight in the matter of earned income as distinguished from earnings on capital, and since they represent a great percentage of the citizenry of the country, we beg the gravest consideration of this proposition. Each signer below hereby enrolls as a member of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph League for the Downward Revision of Taxes on earned incomes and will work with that newspaper toward the end stated.

Permission is hereby granted the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to list the signer in the proper Labor, Clerical or Professional Division of the said League for presentation to our signatures to the United States Congress for the stated purpose.

The signer is not obliged to make any kind of contribution or to do anything except to give his moral support to this movement.

SCOUT WITH BYRD TO TALK WITH PARENTS ON RADIO

DR. DAMROSCH TO BROADCAST 'PACIFIC 231'

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

Tonight KDKA will give a repeat performance of a stunt tried successfully about seven weeks ago.

A voice message will be sent to Paul Siple, the Boy Scout with the Byrd expedition in Little America at 11:05 o'clock, and Paul's radioed answer in code will be rebroadcast over the regular wavelength of KDKA. Afterward it will be translated for the radio public.

The message to Paul will be sent by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Siple of Erie, Pa.

Fans got quite a thrill out of the first two way communication with the Byrd expedition and since tonight's feat brings together, father, mother and son, it has an extra tint of human interest.

The first Stradivarius 'cello duet ever broadcast will be heard at 6:30 o'clock through WCAE during the Whitehouse Music. Two rare old instruments valued at $65,000 will be played.

We like the Purol Band lineup for KDKA at 8 p. m. Opening with the U. S. Field Artillery March the Goldman group will glide into Wagner's "Lohengrin" with the introduction to Act 3 and the Bridal Chorus. Excerpts from "Hit the Deck" will be featured as well as Goldman's own march, "On the Hunt."

Walter Damroach has arranged another excellent concert for the Symphony, WCAE at 9 p. m. One of the greatest musical descriptions known will be played. "The Ride of the Valkyries" from "Die Walkure" is a terrific picture of the winged horses of the Valkries riding over storm-clouds amid flashing lightning with a dead warrior slung over each saddle.

Still another highlight of the Damrosch Symphony concert will be "Pacific 231" – Arthur Honeger's musical picture of the subject that fascinated him all his life, the locomotive. The grinding, roaring and crashing of this rhythmic yet man-controlled monster is ably set forth in the intricate score of "Pasific 231."

Bubbling over with good things is the Pittsburgh Period over KDKA at 10 o'clock. Helen Bell Rush will sing Cadman's "At Dawning" and the orchestra will play "On the Mall," "Suite from Carmen," "Anitra's Dance," 'Echoes from the Red Mill," and "March of the Musketeers," accompanied by the Gold and Black Quartet.

EXCHANGE GREETINGS

CLYDE SIPLE PAUL SIPLE MRS. SIPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Siple, of Erie, Pa., will exchange greetings with their son, Paul, the Boy Scout with the Byrd Expedition, through KDKA at 11:05 o'clock tonight.

SUN-TELEGRAPH MODEL HOME IN FINE AREA

The Dormont Park Plan, location of the first Sun-Telegraph model home which opens tomorrow, is a new and active residential development conveniently located in Dormont with quick transportation to the downtown district by way of the Liberty Tubes.

The entrance to this acreage is on Hillsdale avenue beyond Voelkel avenue, Dormont. It can also be reached conveniently by way of Dormont avenue. The model home is at the corner of Dormont and Earlsmere avenues.

H. J. McCully, developer of the allotment, has laid out the property with an eye toward preserving its natural beauty. The model house is in the heart of the plan and is within a short distance of the woods and playgrounds of Dormont Park, the modern Dormont High School and athletic field, and the large Dormont swimming pool.

There is little first class vacant property left in Dormont with the exception of the Dormont Park Plan. The reason for this is that the property was held as a farm for many years by the Snyder estate and was only allowed to come on the market recently.

Lots for the most part have 50 feet of frontage. They are restricted to individual homes with few exceptions. Streets are paved with brick on a concrete base and curbs are rounded concrete. Alleys are paved in concrete. Water, gas and electricity are, of course, installed.

The model home contains eight rooms and three baths. The materials for it have been carefully chosen. James Romeo is the builder, and skilled craftsmen have handled every detail of the construction.

Transportation makes it easy to visit the model home. The Dormont avenue stop of the Dormont and Beechview lines is only two blocks away. Motorists may make the trip quickly by way of the Liberty Tubes and West Liberty avenue or by way of the West End and the Banksville road. The Sun-Telegraph has placed red arrow markers on these two routes.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Kennedys and Miss Clark Start Tomorrow on Honolulu Trip

THIS mid-April day finds us in the midst of one of those little spells of calm that occur, for no apparent reason, in the middle of even the busiest season. Perhaps the bugaboo of "the thirteenth" acted as a deterrent against any great amount of entertaining today and prevented the number of weddings usually expected on a Saturday.

The last week, though, has been a fruitful one, so far as news about out brides and our debutantes is concerned. And this is bound to increase as we come nearer and nearer to that busy month of June. So far, we've had very few definite dates set for June weddings, but the next few weeks will alter that situation, I am sure.

The travelers, though, we have always with us, don't we? Here are some folks who have just returned home from Florida, where they spent the winter, and are now leaving to take a six weeks' trip to Honolulu. These wanderers are Mr. and Mrs. Reid Kennedy, of Beacon street, and Miss Romaine P. Clark, of Noble avenue, Crafton, and they are planning to leave the city tomorrow. On their way back, I understand, they are going to stop at Phoenix and the Grand Canyon.

Also among the travelers is Mrs. John M. Phillips, who has been making a brief stay in Washington. And back home again is Mrs. Edward O'Neil, of "Wisteria," Sewickley, who has been spending about 10 days with her daughter, Mrs. George Kinner Reed, of Forest Hills, Long Island. Mrs. O'Neil also visited Edward O'Neil II, at Princeton University while she was in the East.

AN engagement is announced today which will interest you, I know. It is that of Florence Wainwright, daughter of Mrs. Harris E. Wainwright and the late Mr. Wainwright, of Beechwood boulevard, to Robert Kerr Follansbee, son of the John Follansbees, of Squirrel Hill avenue. They have set no date for their wedding, I believe.

Florence made her bow to society in the season of 1927-28, you remember, and her sister, Harriet, was a debutante this winter.

AN important addition to the list of events for spring is set for Thursday evening, May 2, when the Charles S. Shoemakers, of Termon avenue, North Side, will present their daughter-in-law, Mrs. David Oliver Shoemaker, the former Vanda Nomicos, in a song recital. The program will be presented in the Twentieth Century Club.

A NUMBER of other parties have been added to the list of entertainments being given for Katherine Porter, who will be married next Saturday to Hartley Given Walker. On Monday afternoon, Elizabeth Fleming Hays is going to give an informal tea in her home in Academy avenue, Sewickley, for Katherine and her attendants, and on the following day, the William Boths, of Grant street, Sewickley, will give a tea in the Allegheny Country Club.

The rehearsal dinner, set, of course, for Friday night, will be given in the Allegheny Country Club by the junior James Barlow Cullums, of Sewickley, and the Allan Milligan Cullums, of Reading. After dinner, there will be dancing. And on the day of the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Kipp, of Lark Inn Fields, of Shields, will give the wedding breakfast in the same club.

DR. AND MRS. JOHN MURPHY, of Loretto, Pa., who spent the winter in Florida, have returned home and will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary tomorrow with their children and grandchildren. Dr. and Mrs. Murphy were married in Gallitzen in 1879 by the late Rev. Martin Ryan, and their attendants, both of whom are living, were Miss Margaret Kelley, of Philadelphia, and John Yobin, of Pittsburgh.

MISS CARRIE M. MAYER, organist of Steel City Chapter No. 341, O. E. S., will give a recital following a short meeting of the chapter on Thursday night. The program will start at 10 o'clock.

DR. AND MRS. J. S. DONALDSON, of Lincoln avenue, Bellevue, return Monday after spending their spring vacation with their sons who are students at Harvard.

THE Fair Players' Duck League of the North Boroughs held a dinner Wednesday night in the Hotel Roosevelt, followed by a business meeting and card party. TALLEY'S 'RETIREMENT' NOW BELIEVED FORCED

By HOMER H. METZ.

International News Service.

(Copyright, 1929, by International News Service.)

NEW YORK, April 12.—Marion Talley, Metropolitan opera singer, was forced into the retirement which she has so gracefully made.

International News Service learned on unimpeachable authority today that the Kansas City songbird had incurred the disfavor of the powers-that-be in the Metropolitan Opera Company and was politely told that she was "no longer needed," after being subjected to the usual "sliding process" that always precedes the discharge of the Metropolitan's golden throated warblers. This "process," it was said, began last season when she was called upon to appear in only three subscription performances of the opera company, an unprecedented misfortune or a singer of Miss Talley's reputed caliber.

During the present season, now drawing to a close, it is significant to note that Miss Talley has not appeared in even a single regular subscription performance.

The young singer was made a metropolitan star in 1926 with a maximum of ballyhoo and theatrical fanfare. Before her first season was over, however, Miss Talley had lost much of her favor.

Backstage at the Metropolitan, it was said, other singers began to complain that she was "overrated." Eventually, Gatti-Casazza, director of the company and other overlords began to concur in this opinion. After this her eventual "retirement" was a foregone conclusion.

In announcing her retirement yesterday, Miss Talley declared that she was motivated by a desire to "settle down" on a farm. When asked whether there was a possibility that Miss Talley would make "talkies for Warner Brothers, Albert W. Warner, said he "could neither confirm nor deny the report."

"It is a lie for anyone to say Miss Talley was forced out, according to William J. Guard, publicity director of the organization. Mr. Guard said he was speaking also for manager Gatti-Casazza.

"Miss Talley ought to try to learn good manners when she retires to her farm," said Mr. Guard today to International News Service. "She didn't even have the courtesy to tell manager Gatti-Casazza that she was retiring. He learned it only when it was printed in the papers.

"Marion Talley ought to be ashamed of herself."

DRY EVIL CURE SEEN IN RUM QUOTA PLAN

Creation of a regional dispensary system, licensed and supervised by the Federal government, and selling of alcoholic beverages in sealed packages, is being urged upon Congress by Dr. Fred W. Buck, executive secretary of the Federal Dispensary-Tax Reduction League, at Washington.

Dr. Buck's plan, which will be of more than common interest to many of the entrants in the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest, is incorporated in House resolution No. 203, proposing an amendment to the Eighteenth Amendment. It provides for the manufacture and transportation of beverages and their sale under government permits and restrictions. The issuance of permits for transportation of liquors into states whose laws prohibit the manufacture or sale of intoxicants is prohibited under the bill.

LESS RUM, MORE CRIME

In presenting the details of the plan to the House Committee on the Judiciary, Dr. Buck said that his proposal is similar to the systems that are in successful operation in Sweden and in some measure, in Canada. He pointed out that defects exist in the Canadian system which he has sought to guard against in the plan he has put forward.

With a startling array of crime statistics, increase in law violations and arrests for drunkenness, Dr. Buck has pointed out that with an actual decrease in the volume of liquor consumed, the consequent deaths and growth in crime exceeds that of the years immediately before prohibition became operative 10 years ago.

Poisoned liquor is taking a greater toll than did the whisky of pre-prohibition days, and in some cities the arrests for drunkenness have approximately doubled.

U. S. TO SET PRICE

Dr. Buck's plan is predicated on the belief that three-fourths of the states will ratify the substitute amendment to the Constitution if it is presented to them by Congress. In the event of ratification, he proposes that the Volstead act be amended to permit the government to license commercial breweries, wineries and distilleries to manufacture pure liquors, under Federal supervision and inspection, and to supervise their sale.

It is his proposal that the government shall pay a reasonable profit to the manufacturers, and after determining the cost of distribution, set a price to the buyers that will net the government a revenue of 100 per cent, which is to be divided equally with the state where the liquor is consumed.

Dispensaries would be established by the government on a basis of not more than one in cities up to 50,000 population, and in the larger cities on a pro rata basis of one to each 50,000 people. In small towns and country districts the postmaster would act as dispensing agent, with an increase in salary proportionate to the population served.

PENALTY ON DRUNKENNESS

Voters are to be given receipts at the time of voting at a regular election and signed by the precinct officials and the voter. These receipts presented to the dispensing agent will permit the issuance of an allowance card on which purchases of two quarts of spiritous liquors, 15 quarts of wine and 30 quarts of beer in a calendar month.

Non-voters of legal age may apply to the election commissioners for certificates, which will expire at the next regular election.

Purchase permits are to be revoked for one year for the first offense of drunkenness, and total revocation for the second offense. Total revocation will follow if the seals on a package are broken before the place designated where it is to be consumed is reached.

7 Rules for $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New Yoxk American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

Electricity Used to Catch Fish

ELECTRICITY is being used to catch fish in parts of Germany. One copper cable is laid at the bottom of the water to be fished, and the other held near the surface by floats. An electric current passes through the cables, and all the fish in their neighborhood are painlessly electrocuted.

Where Funerals Are Free

A LITTLE bit of paradise is Norfolk Island, in the far Pacific. There is no income tax and when an inhabitant dies his family incurs no expense. Each man, however, must work 15 days a year for the community or forfeit $1 for each day.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

What Every Girl Should Know

VERILY, my Daughter, rarer than rubies and more difficult to find than the clam in the restaurant chowder, is a man that taketh the time to WOO a damsel and indulgeth in the mid-Victorian pastime of love-making.

* * *

And she that sigheth for sentiment and yearneth to be courted gracefully shall, peradventure, yearn in vain.

For a kiss was once something to be WON; but now it is only something to be taken—even as the after-dinner mint beside the plate, or the free light at the cigar counter. And a damsel that cannot be kissed at the first attempt is written down "False Alarm," and her name is stricken from a man's telephone list.

For every man prideth himself upon being a "quick worker," and there is no subtlety IN him. And wherefore shall he waste precious time tidious woman, when the world is full of easier and more complaisant women?

* * *

Yet, my Daughter, there IS a way, which wise women have known since the beginning of time. Then, heed my words, and be advised.

Behold, if thou wilt give a man but ONE KISS, and no more, thou shalt have thy way with him, and bring him low without effort.

For, as one drink arouseth a man's thirst but doth not satisfy it, so one kiss arouseth his ardor and his imagination, but doth not surfeit them.

Lo, a man that hath kissed a damsel JUST ONCE is not content until he hath kissed her again; and the longer she denieth him and holdeth him off, thereafter, the brighter shall be the flame of his fervor and the deeper his infatuation.

Yea, his vanity shall be piqued and his fighting spirit aroused; and he shall follow after her, and woo her with all his wiles and with all his strength and with all his obstinacy. For NO man can endure to be thwarted in the beginning of a love affair.

Thus, in time, shall his egotism fall from him and his self-assurance be laid low; and his love of conquest shall, peradventure, be transformed to love of the WOMAN.

* * *

Go to. A man that hath had enough of anything, whether it be wine or food or a woman's kisses, doth not desire any MORE. And much kissing leadeth not to love, but to satiety.

* * *

But a foolish virgin will not learn wisdom, until after the last kiss.

"Sniffles" a Sign of Health Neglect

HAVE you noticed that some of your friends are never without the "sniffles?" They appear to sniff and sneeze on the slightest provocation.

It is a remarkable fact that some persons appear to have no resistance to whatever it is that causes colds. Why is this?

There are certain conditions which the doctors call "reflex troubles." That is, the cause of the disturbance may be a long way off, and the symptoms do not give a direct clue to the real ailment.

Some attacks of sneezing are of this type. In nervous persons they may be the effect of a reflex. Women, perhaps more than men, may be afflicted in this way. At certain periods they may never be free of the symptoms we usually describe as a "cold."

Then, we meet other persons who have very poor resistance to disease, to colds, particularly. If they don't watch out, they suffer from one cold after another.

Such persons are likely to be neglectful of their eating and other habits. The digestion is sluggish and the lower intestine is blocked with food waste.

It is a very interesting thing that indigestion, constipation, bloating, heart-burn and other familiar signs of delayed digestion, may be forerunners of a cold and may result in repeated colds. The system appears to be poisoned and, in consequence, the vitality is lowered.

Nine times out of 10 a sore throat is accompanied or preceded by constipation. Tonsilitis, even, or "quinsy sore throat," may be associated with this intestinal disturbance.

What I am attempting to do is to make plain that colds do not come out of a clear sky. Almost invariably something has lowered the resistance and prepared the way for trouble.

Getting very, very tired may have a similar effect. There can be no doubt that habitual fatigue is dangerous. It does not pay to exhaust the vital energies by such a practice.

Over-worry is another factor. It causes loss of sleep and appetite. A few days of sadness and mental depression will make the victim ready for any infection that may be passing.

Vigorous health, abundant sleep, plenty of fresh air and exercise, and particularly proper eating, will keep the body in good trim and prepared to resist disease. If you have an endless series of colds you must suspect that something is wrong somewhere in your system.

Of course, there comes a time when the tissues of the nose and adjoining parts may become chronically inflamed. Then you have nasal catarrh, but that is another story.

Get rid of your colds by building up your body. With good general health you are unlikely to have them.

A.—Although there is no real definite cure, with proper treatment the condition can be improved.

D. M. Q.—Would diseased tonsils cause me to have tonsilitis?

A.—Yes. It would be wise to have the tonsils removed if they are diseased.

H. N. Q.—Is it injurious for a baby to wear short stockings during the Winter weather? My home is warm and the baby is warmly clad when taken out-of-doors.

2.—What would cause a strong odor of ammonia in the baby's kidney elimination?

A.—No, if the baby is used to wearing them and you have noticed no ill effects.

2.—Probably some fault in the diet, too much fat, for instance. Watch his diet.

'WESTWARD HO!' 'The World for to See!'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"ALL ABOARD!" And praying for eyes to see with, and for words to say what the eyes see. Even the fellow who sees well is sure there is much more to see of the inwardness of things than he has realized, and strains to see it. "Eyes to see with," the genius to understand the meaning of the thing one looks at; the gift to see through and around it!

The lady who travels alone—perhaps this happens to a man, too, for sometimes he carries the air of it!—takes on a stately, aristocratic mood. She reads the book she has waited to read; she has plenty of time to see that hair waves are just as she likes them; her bags are in order every moment; she does the long march to the diner, conscious of row after row of lifted eyes that she is sure are admiring her new gown, her pretty shoes, the tone of her sheeny stockings, her hair cut; she does not remember that the brakeman does the same on top of the long freight train and that HIS march is the more interesting one; she dines in state, feeling rather aloof and romantic, looking down with a cool eye at the stay-at-homes on station platforms that swim by like lowly fish in another element than her own; she migrates to that indescribable observation car platform and looks out on the whole world sliding by and from under her, as from a chariot throne. She shows off a bit there—her new furs and her smart hat—"and so to bed," with the click of rails muffled below her ears, the engineer up forward riding his intricate, blowing, ringing steel monster, looking tensely into the night black—for her safety. The lady traveling alone.

But the lady traveling with FOUR! and one of the four an angle worm and a pony, a restless wave, a streak of lightning and a question box all in one! "That's something else again!" as the inhabitant of foreign New York and some of our girls who ought to know better, say. The lonely state may be peaceful and princely. The porter may give you more rapt attention. Your deeply serated head may stay in more perfect order. But you'll never have as much fun! The excitement; the lost fishing pole, of green string and bent pin; the debates over the menu; the one black bag that looks like anybody else's bag always gets lost and goes off with someone else's because you don't know it when you see it; the station-to-station leap with two taxis, four people all talking a once, eight bags, a teddy bear who is a boy and is yet named "Winnie," after a famous bear, and a bow and arrow that gets caught in buttons and tips people's hats off; the joys of saying to the man you love, "look at that!" and answering the baby and the mother you love when they want to know "what is that?" the going forward to look at the great engine that hauls you over high passes and having the engineer tell you all about his oversize pet, because you have a little boy along! You don't get that when you are a lady traveling alone! The distracted Leaving; the excited Journeying; the ecstatic Arrival. She misses them all.

The writer is glad she is the lady who is traveling as Four. She used to adore being lonely and selfish. Now she adores being bothered by the "souls of her soul."

Everything in "Ship-Shape" for Brixton's Visit

I LOOKED at Lillian in consternation as she put the query concerning the aid she wished from my father in estimating the character of Samuel Brixton.

"Don't look as if I were going to garrote you," she laughed. "If you have forgotten to ask him, it's no hanging matter. There's still time."

"It isn't that," I said, "but he is not here. He had to go away on a short business trip and he cannot possibly get back until after the Brixtons leave. I meant to write you about it, but—I just didn't, that's all. I'm sorry."

"Don't be," Lillian advised. "It would have spoiled a perfect trip if you had. I probably would have magnified the disappointment. Now I'm a philosopher. The trip has been so wonderful and Marion has been such a darling that I feel strong enough to cope with anything—even Sam Brixton's cussedness, which I feel perfectly sure is concealed about him somewhere. I'd have liked your father's advice and opinion, of course, but—I'll have his daughter's—than whose there is none better, also Katherine's. I'll back the judgment of you two against any man living."

I swept her an elaborate obeisance, more relieved at her casual acceptance of my father's absence than I cared to let her see. I knew how much she had counted upon his keen insight and ripe judgment, and had feared the effect of the disappointment upon her.

"A thousand thanks for the compliment," I told her. "Come on and let me show you where we're going to house the guests. Father's absence has given us another room, so I think they'll be very comfortable."

I led her from one room to another of the four we had set aside for the visitors. The large guest room with twin beds I had planned of course for Samuel Brixton and his wife, Marion's room was to be given up to Carolyn, the schoolgirl daughter of the family, while Marion shared her mother's room. Charles Owen was to be given Dicky's room, while my father's apartment was to be used by Ronald, the young collegian.

"Everything is simply perfect, Madge," Lillian said admiringly, when we had finished the inspection of the rooms which only needed a final light dusting and the placing of fresh flowers to be ready for the visitors. "You certainly are the hostess extraordinary. Well! at any rate, Samuel Brixton will see that I have a devoted friend. I can think of no greater proof of friendship than for a woman to open her house to another woman's guests, and they all strangers, whom she never has seen."

"If you'll stop talking nonsense," I told her emphatically, "you'd please me greatly. I'm looking forward to this visit with a great deal of interest. What you have told me of Helen Brixton has made me want to know her—she must be charming—and young people are always interesting. I'm wondering what they'll be like."

"So is Marion," Lillian said with a wry grin. "She's evidently absorbed the notion up at school that every college boy is a possible admirer. Oh, she's been very careful to drop no hint of especial interest in Ronald. All of her questions have been about Carolyn, with only an occasional casual reference to Ronald. But I can see that she's quite excited over the prospect of meeting a college youth so near her own age."

I met her eyes into which a shadow had crept, with a smile which I purposely made a bit derisive.

"You don't expect to immure Marion in a nunnery, do you?" I asked.

Signing Your Name

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Will you kindly criticize this letter as to material, letter form and writing?

2. If Mary Smith married Edward Henry Jones how should her name be signed, both formally and informally? At the close of a letter, on a note of thanks, in the return address on a letter, and so forth?

MUCH TO LEARN.

YOUR letter is in very good form, except that you capitalize sincerely and yours in "Very sincerely yours." In the complimentary close the words after the first word are not capitalized. Your writing is very good-looking and exceptionally clear. Try to make the characters slant a bit more to the right. Your letter paper is on good form, but I do not see why you do not write on it in the proper sequence of pages, instead of using it as one sheet.

2. Informally, her letters is signed:

Very truly yours,
Mary Smith Jones.

(Taking it for granted that, to her closest friends, she would sign her name Mary.)

Her business letters, or letters to those whom she must inform of her married name, would be

Very truly yours,
Mary Smith Jones.
(Mrs. Edward Henry Jones.)

The return address for a letter would be written formally: Mrs. Edward Henry Jones.

Initialing Silver

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I am going to be married in a chapel where there are no church parlors and the entrance is from the street. The ceremony is to be very informal and simple, with only a few relatives present. Shall my husband and I walk down the aisle after the ceremony to receive congratulations and say "Goodby" or does this take place at the altar?

2. I am going to wear a biege colored dress and a hat to match. What color shoes and hose shall I wear?

3. What initials does a bride have embroidered on her towels?

4. What is the best legal form of a name for a married woman to adopt?

B. J. S.

IF this most informal of receptions is the custom of the city in which you live then it would be all right to receive the congratulations of the few friends near the entrance. This would be far better than standing at the altar. But it would be best of all if you could have this little reception at your own home.

2. I recommend that you complete the beige ensemble—and a beige ensemble is one of the most effective of all, I think—by wearing shoes and stockings of exactly the same shade. You may, as you probably know, have these dyed to match your frock.

3. There is much difference of opinion on this, but, to my taste, it is better taste for the bride-to-be to use the initials of her maiden name when she embroiders her linens and when she has her silver engraved. She has not the right yet to use the initials of her married name. And, of course, custom has always been that she use the initials of her maiden name. However, there are many radical brides-to-be who insist on using the initials of their married names. Never, however, will you find this true in the most exclusive circles of society.

4. Usually a married woman drops the middle name of her maiden name, and uses the first and last names of her maiden name: Mary Browne. If for any married name: Mary Smith Browne. The other form often used is the use of the first name and the surname of her married name: Mary Browne. If, for any reason she needs to indicate her formal married name (as in a business letter or a letter to anyone who does not know her married name), she writes it in parentheses, after the informal name. For example, the signature of a business letter should be:

Very truly yours,
MARY SMITH BROWNE.
(Mrs. Henry Allen Browne).

Horoscopes

Sunday, April 14

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds promise for affairs of church and state, bending the energies in the direction of profound thought and study. And while the general condition of affairs must be read as favorable, yet there is a retarding influence that may militate against important progress for the moment.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of an interesting year, with probably important events in business, new ventures and in employment, despite some tenacious obstables to overcome. There is a sign calling for personal discretion, possibly in home affairs.

A child born on this day will be well equipped for success in many directions, but it may be called upon to use much patience and perseverance in overcoming obstacles.

Monday, April 15

MONDAY'S astrological forecast hints of situations to be manipulated by calmness and complete discretion. There is menace of hostile conditions and ill-timed changes, largely superinduced by a tendency to rash and impulsive conduct. With control there are some benefits in store.

Those whose birthday it is open the year with a menace from Mars, inciting to tumult and rash acts. Important change should not be undertaken under this provocation to strife, contention and poor judgment.

A child born on this day may require excellent training and discipline to assist it from shoals of impetuosity and clamor. Self-undoing may be its chief menace.

Old-Fashioned Veal Salad

Dice carefully two cupfuls of cold roast veal shoulder. Mix with it a cupful of chopped celery, a tablespoonful each of minced pepper and grated onion. Add a tablespoonful of capers to a highly seasoned mayonnaise. Add a cupful of crisp lettuce cut in ribbons with the kitchen scissors. Wipe the inside of the salad bowl with a cut bud of garlic. Fold the dressing into the salad so it is entirely moistened, add a little salt and cayenne pepper. Fill lettuce leaves with the salad or place in a lettuce-lined bowl, and garnish with stoned olives and hard-boiled eggs cut in thin slices.

BUC SPITTER CUB JINX LAST YEAR

THE action of Manager Donie Bush in selecting Burleigh Grimes to pitch for Pittsburgh in the opening battle of the baseball pennant campaign in Chicago next Tuesday afternoon looks like the logical move, all things considered. As Bush explains, a spitball pitcher is a better bet than another type of hurler at a time when there is an overflow crowd on the field, as will be the case on Tuesday, because the enemy batsmen are more likely to hit his pitches into the dirt than to hoist them among the spectators for ground-rule extra-base hits.

Burleigh Grimes.

But aside from that feature of the reckoning, Grimes, despite the fact that never in his big league career has he pitched a curtain-raiser, shapes up as the most promising slab selection that could be made for the opener by the reason of the record that he made against the Cubs last year. Burleigh trimmed the Bruins four times and lost to them only once in 1928. In his first meeting with them he shut them out, 10 to 0; next he beat them 6 to 2; then he downed them 10 to 4, following up with another shut-out, 1 to 0, and finally losing to them, 2 to 3.

IN the five games Grimes allowed only nine runs and 31 hits. He started one other game against the Bruins, but was lifted after working 7 1-3 innings. The Bucs won out, 8 to 7, but the victory was credited to another Pittsburgh pitcher. Two of Grimes' wins were scored over Fred Blake, one over Charley Root and one over Art Nehf. His defeat was suffered at the hands of Perce Malone, who may oppose him on Tuesday.

Last year's series between the Pirates and Cubs resulted in an even break, each club winning 11 games. In beating the Cubs 11 times, the Corsairs equalled the best showing made against Chicago by any other club in the National League. Only one other outfit, St. Louis, defeated the Bruins that number of times. So the records of both Grimes and the Pirates in competition with the Windy City entry during 1928 were such as to enable local fans to feel reasonably hopeful that the Rovers will succeed in getting off on the right foot three days hence.

JOE M'CARTHY, Cub skipper, is equally confident of victory in the opener. He says he has five pitchers ready for duty and can hardly go wrong on his pick. "We're ready to go," McCarthy declares. "Every man on the squad with the exception of Gabby Hartnett is in shape.

"It's the best team by many points that I have had since I became manager of the Cubs, and I'm sure we'll be in this race all the way. Hornsby has added lots to the club's punch. The pitching staff has developed. Hack Wilson is knocking the ball out of all the lots, and the gang has a great fighting spirit."

Joe McCarthy.

GABBY HARTNETT is hopeful of being behind the bat for the Cubs soon after the opener if he isn't able to play against the Pirates in the lid-lifter that is now only three days off. "There's one little spot in my back just below the shoulder that still hurts when I throw," Gabby says. "However, it's better than it was a week ago and much better than it was two weeks ago. I'm sure it's working out. It may leave suddenly any day, I'm told. I have hopes that I can start the season, but I don't know. However, I'll be O. K. very soon and ready to do all I can to help the team."

IF the New York Boxing Commission was actuated by the unsportsmanlike motive of keeping a Negro from becoming a champion or a "defender" when it refused to let the bout between Kid Chocolate and Bushy Graham last night be put on as a championship match, it certainly succeeded in its object, as if the fight had been allowed to go through for the bantamweight title at the bantamweight poundage, the "Keed" would today be the leader of the class.

For that matter, he really is the leader of the division, in view of what happened. Of course, he can claim no titles, as he did not try to make the bantamweight limit after the commission ruled the affair a non-championship contest, but he was a clear winner all the way, had Graham on the verge of a knockout and would have won inside the limit if the decision had not been given to him on a foul in the seventh round. And what he did above the bantamweight limit he probably could have done at 118 pounds if he had been given the title chance he deserved.

DOUBLES bowling teams made up of brothers are not unusual. There were Eddie and Harry Votel, of East Pittsburgh, for instance, to say nothing of teams that actually won the A. B. C. national championship, such as the Allens, of Detroit, in 1915, and the Spinellas, of New York, in 1922.

But did you ever hear of a five-man team, good enough for tournament play, composed entirely of brothers? Well, such a rare bowling family has been discovered in Kansas City. The team is formed of five Keating brothers. They are J. J., S. P., Robert, Michael and J. C., and they are entered in the annual city championship tournament as the representative five of Shawnee Council, Knights of Columbus.

Bucky Harris.

THE truth of the old wisecrack that a baseball club is no stronger than its substitutes has often been demonstrated. And it is equally true that substitutes or utility men of the right type are very scarce articles in the diamond sport. Not only must they have the mechanical ability to jump into holes and play practically as well as the absent regulars until the latter return, but their dispositions count for a lot, too. In fact, Manager Bucky Harris, of the Tigers, contends that the value of a utility player depends upon his disposition to greater extent than upon any other quality in his makeup.

"IF your reserve players are men of good disposition, you are well off," Harris says, "but often they have anything but good dispositions and then it is bad luck for you. The reserve player, sitting on the bench day after day, becomes discontented and often surly. He has an idea that he is much better than the man playing regularly.

"When you send such a man in as a substitute he is apt to sulk and not give his best. His grouch also will affect others. This is not true so often of recruits. They are waiting and hoping for their opportunity. When they get a chance they give you everything they have in order to make good. But the veteran who has slipped back to utility roles often will do much harm by taking his status in bad grace."

EDDIE M'LAUGHLIN, new National League umpire, appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Sherwood Magee, has just signed his first contract in the senior major circuit, and reports himself in fine condition at 202 pounds after a training trip to the Southland. McLaughlin is a resident of Philadelphia, as was Magee, which puts it up to League President Heydler to offer some new explanation as to why he never gives any consideration to Frank Brown, of this city, when there is a vacancy on his staff, despite the fact that good baseball judges all over the country pronounce Brown one of the best umpires in the minor leagues.

Heydler's explanation always has been that he did not wish to have on the staff men who resided in any of the cities in the National League. True, Philadelphia isn't any more than in the league in view of the regularity with which the Phillies finish in last place, but

LOCAL STAR AFTER NORTH, SOUTH TITLE

PINEHURST, N. C., April 13.—(AP.)—George Voigt, defending champion, and a former national champion, W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, meet in the final of the North and South amateur golf tournament today.

Voigt unbuckled a card of 69 yesterday to eliminate the Harvard sophomore, Phillips Finlay, in the semi-finals, while Fownes defeated Richard Wilson, of Pinehurst, in the other bracket.

Two birdies and an eagle for a card of 32 were used by Voigt in defense of his title on the difficult inward nine. Finlay took 40-36—76 for the round.

Fownes, playing his iron shots with superb accuracy, went out in 36 to stand 1 up on Wilson at the turn. They halved the next four holes and Wilson squared the match on the fourteenth. Fownes took the next three holes, using an eagle 3 on the sixteenth to beat Wilson's birdie 4.

Voigt made the turn 2 up on Finlay. Despite his brilliant score the last half was a nip and tuck battle to the eighteenth green.

JACK ZIVIC BEATEN

CANTON, April 13.—Dick Ramies, former California welterweight, but now fighting out of Cleveland, won a 10-round verdict over Jack Zivic, veteran Pittsburgher, here last night in a sensational slugfest.

Zivic's greater experience aided him, but Ramies refused to ease up and the one-sided ninth round and a close shade in the tenth enabled the Westerner to win.

In the other fights, Johnny Curtin, Dayton, and Alvie Miller, Youngstown lightweight, went six rounds to a draw; K.O. Husk, Akron middleweight, knocked out Walter Plotts, Massillon, in the fourth round; Young Corsey, Canton, outpointed Bobby Bedford, Alliance lightweight, in six rounds and Kid Ruff, Canton junior middleweight, stopped Jimmy Beiderman, of Dover, in two rounds.

Rommel Scores Athletics' Critics

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—(INS.)—Stop razzing the Athletics. The players are giving their best for Connie Mack and will play better ball if the fans stop their jeering. This was the gist of a plea relayed through radio station WELK by Eddie Rommel, right-handed hurler of the A's.

The continued razzing of certain players has hindered their playing, and the players, one and all, are playing their hardest not only for themselves and Connie Mack, but for Philadelphia, Rommel said.

Rommel's plea was surprising to his followers, since he is known as one of the "hardest-boiled" men on the team, and seemingly has never been affected by the severe razzing he always receives when on the mound.

Mickey Cochrane and Jimmy Dykes, both targets of the fans, were cited by the star hurler as examples of the fans' unjustified razzing. Both men are known throughout the League, Rommel said, as two of the hardest players in the game. Sammy Hale, another player ofttimes razzed by the bleacherites, was praised by the Athletics' spokesman.

TUG PHILLIPS VICTOR

ERIE, Pa., April 13.—Tug Phillips, of Pittsburgh, added further prestige to his fistic record when he handed Johnny O'Keefe, of Columbus, a 10-round defeat in the main event half of a double windup here last night.

O'Keefe started well, but after the third round Phillips started to use a right hand effectively and was soon on his way to the decision. Johnny made a brief comeback in the ninth, but Phillips was smothering him again in the tenth, to win by a fair margin.

Tiny Debolt, Cleveland, won easily from Dan Bailey, of Akron, in the 10-round semi-final. Ray Collins, Erie, outclassed Mickey Petti, Syracuse, in the six-round preliminary. Matty Oldach, Erie, scored a technical knockout over Joey Russo, Youngstown, in the second round. Jimmy Dean won the decision over Jackie Logan, Dunkirk, in the four-round curtain-raiser.

BORG SETS RECORD

HONOLULU, T. H., April 13.—(AP.)—A new world record was claimed for Arne Borg, of Sweden, who won the 1,000-meter free style swimming event in the war memorial natatorium here last night. His time was 13 minutes 3-5 seconds. Borg made the former record at the Olympic Games in Amsterdam, when he swam the distance in 13 minutes 6 3-5 seconds.

RODGERS BEATS MILTON, BOUT RULED DRAW

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

Rounds 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 8, 9, 10—Rodgers.
Rounds 4 and 7—even.
Decision (get a load of this):
Judge Frank Brown—Rodgers.
Judge Jock Simco—Milton.
Referee Al Grayber—draw.

There, in a nutshell, you have the story of last night's one-sided and none-too-interesting 10-round main bout at the Moose Temple between Jackie Rodgers, local Negro bantamweight, and Tommy Milton, washed-up veteran, of New York.

They finally dug up somebody who couldn't beat the willing Rodgers, and then the officials muffed the verdict to give the loser a draw in about as poor a decision as has been rendered here all season.

Milton never once was in the fight. All he did was to go through the motions of a boxer who once knew his stuff well enough to beat Corp. Izzy Schwartz and win over other so-called great fighters in New York. He can't hit hard enough to crack an eggshell, and he can't take it any too well, judging from his covering-up tactics. Rodgers landed on him at will, round after round, and but for the fact that Jackie coasted along from time to time, he would have taken every session with plenty to spare. At times Rodgers appeared to be "carrying" Milton, so puerile were the latter's efforts. And then the three-way decision.

The fight was nothing to brag about, but that decision—!

Rodgers weighed 116¾ pounds and Milton 115 at 3 p. m.

CRUTCHFIELD WINS

Kid Crutchfield, veteran Negro light-heavyweight, of the Hill, was too smart for Charley Brodd, big and tough and willing Swede, of McKeesport, and handily won the decision in the six-round semi-final. Crutchfield, short and roly-poly, hooked and swung to his heart's content. He weighed 186 pounds, against 184½ for Brodd.

Jess Hoak, of McKeesport, made a chopping block of Sammy (Kid) Sunshine, of Annapolis, Md., a Negro who is darker than that, and won all off by himself in the six-round second bout. Sunshine, who

REMY KREMER SHOWS STUFF ON MOUND

Staff Correspondent.

MEMPHIS, April 13.—Monsieur Kremer gave an extraordinary performance yesterday in the matter of forcing batters to hit the ball in the air where his supporting actors could get under the rocket. Of the 27 put-outs made by the Pittsburghers, no less than 22 were accomplished over the air route.

The last eight men to go to the barrier lofted the ball to a waiting player. Of the five who did not fly out, just two went out at first base via assists, one struck out, another was forced and the remaining player was run down between bases.

RETIRED IN ORDER

Beginning with the fifth inning, Kremer retired the Chicks in order until the game ended. That means nobody reached first base in the bigger portion of the game.

Kremer's remarkable feat bears out Donie Bush's theory in regard to lofts when Frenchy works. Ray being a fast high-ball pitcher in one sense, the batter, as a rule, gets under the ball. Bush probably would have favored Kremer over Grimes for the opener Tuesday, but he thinks there will be fans on the field and a long fly that ordinarily would be caught might reach the fringe of the overflow for a fluke extra baser.

REMY AT TOP

Kremer now acts like he did in the years he was riding high. He pitched nine rounds yesterday and at the finish was working in a free and easy style. When Ray is in form he does not tire on the mound, the reserve always being in evidence. It is only when he is in a jam that he extends himself to the limit, he relying on his teammates largely when the bases are empty. Not a Chick was able to coax a pass out of Remy.

Charley Hargreaves handled Kremer faultlessly in Frenchy's longest tour of the season. The smoothness of the battery may lead Manager Bush to put Hargreaves under the bat Tuesday in the opener with the Cubs.

WANER HITS HOMER

Paul Waner's over-the-fence homer was a lusty clout, the right-field barrier being far from the plate. Manager Bush insisted on early batting practice for the Waner boys, Traynor and Adams yesterday.

RAIN MAY KEEP BUCS IDLE

(By Staff Correspondent.)

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 13.—With rain falling steadily in the morning hours, the chances for a game this afternoon between the Pirates and the Chicks were gloomy. The morning session arranged for some of his athletes by Manager Bush had to be called off, but the boss was hoping that a contest could be staged.

The showers followed two very pleasant days here. Four games were on the card in Memphis, the Pirates to close up their long training season tomorrow afternoon. Early in the evening they will board a train for Chicago to be ready for the opener on Tuesday.

The Buccos are scheduled to reach Chicago at 9:20 Monday morning. Monday is an open date.

OPENING TILT EXPECTED TO BE COLORFUL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

MEMPHIS, April 13.—The clash of the Pirates and Cubs in Chicago Tuesday promises to be the most appealing part of the National League race that gets away on that date.

The holiday is sure to be a big event all over the circuit, but the schedule for the inaugural seems to favor the Buccos and Bruins for several reasons. In the East, for instance the occasion will bring together the Giants and the Phillies, with the Dodgers taking on the revamped Braves. Neither of these games will be as colorful as the meeting of the Cubs and the Pirates, nor will the collision of the Reds and the Cardinals.

Carmen Hill

Wrigley Field already is reported sold out for the festive occasion in the big city on the lake. Ever since Joe McCarthy took charge of the Bruins they have been an outstanding attraction in baseball, and the recent acquisition of Rogers Hornsby has added to the fervor.

BANNER CROWD EXPECTED

The Cubs have been flag factors during the McCarthy reign. And the punch Hornsby is expected to give the club makes for pennant hopes, it being no secret that the Chicago players figure that they have an excellent chance to cop.

In the event of baseball weather, a banner crowd will be out to cheer the heavy home favorites, and from the artistic side, too, the contest is likely to be a big success, for the two clubs have come to the starting tape in excellent condition after a very successful training season.

The natural rivalry between the Cubs and the Pirates is exceptionally keen. It starts with Bush and McCarthy, who were rival pilots in the American Association and runs right down the scale of players, the trade involving Sparky Adams and Hazen Cuyler being a contributing influence, not to mention the prev-

FIGHT BILL PASSED

DOVER, Del., April 13.—(AP.)—The House of Representatives, by a vote of 18 to 17, yesterday passed the Senate bill legalizing boxing in Delaware. It now goes to the governor. The bill creates a boxing commission of three to be appointed by the governor and permits bouts up to 10 rounds.

TARTANS HOSTS TO MARKSMEN TODAY

By JESS CARVER

Six squads of college marksmen, representing Penn, Drexel, Pitt, West Virginia, Penn State and Carnegie Tech are competing in the annual intercollegiate championship matches on the Tech indoor range which began at 10 o'clock this morning. Georgetown and the Navy, members of the intercollegiate association, may be last-minute entrants.

The Penn State team, beaten but once this season in a dual match, will be represented by a fine array of marksmen and is favored to finish close to, if not at, the top. The Tech gunners served State its lone defeat.

A pair of college baseball games complete the college sport program for the day in the tri-state district. Dick Guy's St. Vincent College nine plays Penn State at State College, the opening game of the season for the Saints and the home opener for the Lions. Marshall College and Rio Grande meet at Weston in a West Virginia Conference tussle.

PITT TO SCRIMMAGE

Jock Sutherland will put his Pitt gridders through a regular practice game this afternoon, pitting the varsity against the second-stringers. Scrimmages have been held daily for the past week, but this will be the first regulation game.

The varsity will line up with Loehr and Donchess at ends; Tully and either Corson or Crissinger at the tackles; Capt. DiMeolo and Ray Montgomery at the guards; Daugherty at center, and Edwards, Williams, Uansa and Parkinson in the backfield.

ZOOK'S FINE RECORD

Speaking of coaching records (if we weren't, we'll start now), this chap Zook at Waynesburg High School has compiled one at which it would be considered highly impolite to scoff.

Zookie has been instructing the high school boys for the past five years, three of which were spent at Waynesburg and two at Redstone. His football teams at Waynesburg have won 16 games, lost eight and tied one. In 1926, his first year on the job, Zook's eleven was unbeaten and was scored on only once, a touchdown being tallied from a fumbled punt.

In 1924 and 1925, Zook's footballers finished in the runner-up position for the Fayette county championship and his basketball team won the title.

IS GOOD COACH

Waynesburg basketball teams have won 58 games and lost 17 in the three years they have been under Zook. His 1928 team won the Waynesburg College tournament and lost out in the semi-finals this year. He also engineered his team into second place in the W. P. I. A. L. sectional standing during the past campaign, and defeated both Georges Township and Stowe, teams that won sectional titles.

There may be better coaching records than this one, probably there are, but there are plenty that are worse.

SET DOWN CHICKS, 8-1

The fact that each manager has a whole flock of sharpshooters in fine condition will add to the feverish spirit of battle. The whole series of four games may be fraught with extraordinary slab action in view of the available pitchers. Pilot Donie has Grimes, Kremer, Hill, Swetonic, Dawson, Petty and Fussell all set for slab toil, while Marse Joe can counter with Blake, Root, Malone, Bush, Carlson and Nehf.

The Bushwackers looked more like their natural selves yesterday as they defeated the Chicks, 8 to 1. The Pittsburgh success was largely the result of the high class pitching of Remy Kremer. Frenchy held the classy Southerners to four hits, the home boys going out in order in the last five frames.

Buckshot May, once a Pirate hurler, looked like the right kind of opposition for Kremer and the Bucs for three rounds, during which he yielded only one hit, but Buckshot lost his control in the fourth and his support also wavered. The five runs that came over during the flurry were sufficient to win a couple of games, in view of Remy Kremer's mastery.

Paul Waner added to the gayety by hitting the ball of the right field wall for his first homer of the year. Carmen Hill is slated to face the Chicks today.

Sammy Paris, of the Hill, defeated Young Jacobs, of Canonsburg, in the six-round opener. Both weighed 121½ pounds.

The crowd was fair in size. Chuck Eberle was back on the job as announcer, and white gloves were used for the first time in Pittsburgh in the main bout.

Jack DeMave, New Jersey heavyweight, will arrive in town early tomorrow for his 10-round windup with Ike McFowler, of Johnstown, in the Motor Square ring Monday night and will work out in the Motor Square gym tomorrow afternoon. McFowler will come by auto Monday morning.

THREE FIGHTING PAULS

Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, who boxes Howard Mayberry, of Donora, in the main bout at McKeesport next Thursday night, is one of three fighting bantamweight brothers, the others being Mickey and Glenn Paul. He is the best of the lot and boasts a fine record, including a victory over Frankie Genaro, former flyweight champion.

The card has been completed for the show at the Washington (Pa.) Gardens Monday night. Battling Gizzy, of Donora, meets Joe Boychan, of Steubenville, O., in the 10-round main bout. Red Ryan and Harry Spencer, both of Washington, will box the six-round semi-final, and Johnny Vivio, of Bloomfield, is matched with Eddie Anderson, of Scottdale, in the other six-rounder. In two four-round bouts, Dutch Zenoble, of Uniontown, battles Johnny Popple, of Wheeling, and Donald Rathbone, of Houston, Pa., meets Paul Poello, of Benwood, W. Va.

The fans of the New Castle district are on edge for the Willie Davies-Midget Wolgast battle in the Jolly Bowl Monday night. Scheduled two weeks ago and postponed, the fifth meeting of the pair of flyweights has the populace completely stirred.

As a result of his showing against Tommy Milton last night, Jackie Rodgers has been matched to box Willie Davies, of Charleroi, in the 10-round windup at the Moose Temple next Friday night.

Jack Zivic and Dick Ramies have been rematched for a 10-round bout at Canton, O., May 3. Zivic fought a sensational but losing battle with the Californian at Canton last night, after having been out of the ring since last June.

Grays Open Season Tomorrow in W. Va.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., April 13.—Though they will be handicapped when they meet the Erie Central League club at South Side Park here, tomorrow afternoon, the Homestead Grays expect to come out on top. Erie has had the benefit of several more days training than the Pittsburgh Negro players. Manager Posey is going to press at least three pitchers into service, Lefty Williams, Sam Streeter and possibly "Smoky Joe" Williams. Unless the temperature is just right for the veteran he will not work, McDonald or Nash, new twirlers being chosen instead.

The Grays will remain in training here the greater part of next week. A game may be played at Beckley next Thursday, after which the club will head toward Pittsburgh to tune up for the lid lifted at Forbes Field a week from today with the Akron, O., Club, an old rival of the Grays.

MELLO DEFEATS JOE DUNDEE

BOSTON, Mass., April 13.—Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, was again trounced last night by Al Mello, Lowell fighter, in their return non-title bout here.

The Lowell youth was given the decision over the Baltimore champ at the conclusion of the scheduled 10-round go. Their bout was the feature event of the Boston Garden's charity boxing show.

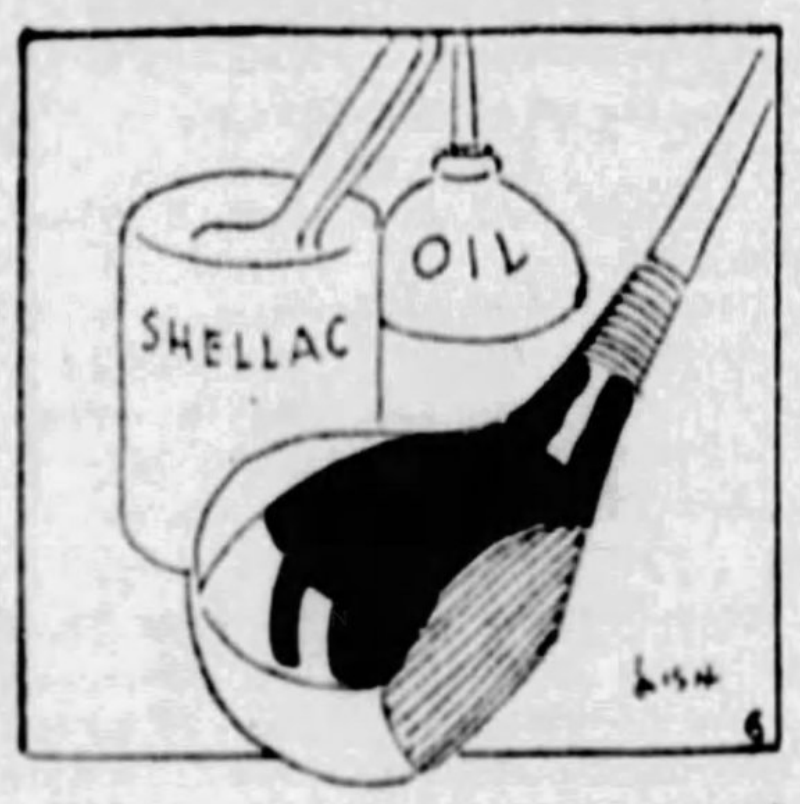
Three months ago Mello gave the welterweight champion a severe beating, and last night's fight was to decide whether or not Mello would have an opportunity at Dundee's title, which is being disputed by the National Boxing Association.

At all events, Mello has won the right to a crack at the title, and he has been promised a title bout outdoors this summer.

JACK BRITTON WINS

MACON, Ga., April 13.—(AP.)—Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, won a close 10 round decision over Tot Wilson of Chicago here last night.

GOLF AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT



OIL AND SHELLAC CLUBS OCCASIONALLY

MAKE SURE THAT HEADS ARE TIGHT

How can one preserve the life of his clubs?

Answered by

BOB CRUICKSHANK

Winner of Los Angeles, San Antonio, Hot Springs, North-and-South Open Championships, 1927, Maryland Open, 1928.

This is certainly a very important feature of the game. Bad clubs or good clubs in bad condition inevitably lead to bad golf. Therefore, every two weeks or so I oil and shellac my shafts and wooden heads. Before playing I always see that I have no loose iron heads and that none of the grips are loose. I leave my clubs in the shop in one of the racks made for holding golf bags which are waiting to be cleaned. This allows the clubs to lie in a horizontal position and takes the strain off the shafts.

After playing in the rain golfers should have their clubs dried immediately and oiled, since the rain is apt to eat into the shaft and rot it. If possible, it is best to leave clubs with a professional so that he can look after them all the time.

GRAHAM FOULS CHOCOLATE IN SEVENTH

NEW YORK, April 13.—Kid Chocolate, Negro featherweight of Havana, Cuba, was awarded a decision over Bushy Graham, of Utica, N. Y., claimant of the world bantamweight championship, in the seventh round of a scheduled 15-round bout that opened the New York Coliseum last night.

ENDS IN SEVENTH

Referee Jack Dorman disqualified Graham for delivering a foul blow after two minutes and four seconds of fighting in the seventh round.

Dorman did the right thing, and more than 18,000 spectators shouted their approval when the announcer pointed to Chocolate as the winner. Graham had fouled the Negro on at least two previous occasions, and there was still another protest by Chocolate which may have been justified. At the time the bout was stopped, Graham was leading on points.

Chocolate was not incapacitated by the blow on which Dorman stopped the fight. He stepped back with expression of pain on his face and looked protestingly at the referee, but displayed no intention of refusing to continue the bout. Dorman stepped between the men, took Graham by his arm and shoved him toward his corner.

GRAHAM FLOORED

In the last round, Graham was caught off balance by Chocolate and floored by a left to the jaw. Chocolate tried to finish the white man and the crowd went wild. Graham stopped him momentarily with a left to the chin, but Chocolate had all the better of some wild exchanges for the first two minutes. Graham belted Chocolate with a low left and was sent back to his corner.

The 10-round semi-final, put on after the main bout, went to Irish Bobby Brady, New Jersey featherweight, who whipped Lou Moscowitz, of New York, in a slugging go. Brady put the Bronx lad on the floor for a count of nine in the first round and easily won the decision.

MAJ. SEGRAVE KNIGHTED BY ENGLAND

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 13.—(AP.)—Maj. H. O. Segrave arrived home from America yesterday with a new world motor speed record to find that King George had conferred the honor of knighthood on him as well as congratulating him in a message from Craigwell House on his brilliant performance. This was believed to be the first time that such an honor had been bestowed for speed on land, although it has been awarded for aerial feats several times.

The message of King George said:

"On your arrival home, I send you my hearty congratulations on your splendid achievements on winning for Great Britain the world speed record for motor cars and on your success in the race for the International Speedboat Trophy."

LINER DELAYED

Delay of the liner Olympic by gales and fog interfered somewhat with the plans for the reception of the triumphant automobile racer. When the ship stopped at Cherbourg, Major Segrave told newspapermen that he would take the wheel again if anyone bettered his mark of 231 miles an hour established at Daytona Beach, Florida, in March.

A dinner in his honor was already in progress last night when the Olympic berthed shortly before 9 o'clock. Sirens of other vessels in Southampton water sounded a continuous salute as the great liner moved slowly in. It was a cheerless night of wind and sleet that made it uncomfortable for the friends and townsfolk waiting at the quayside to greet the speed king.

GETS HEARTY WELCOME

A civic party boarded the Olympic to give a hearty welcome to Major Segrave in the smoking room of the liner. As the hero and his wife, the latter holding a bouquet given by the Mayoress of Southampton, stepped down the gangway they were besieged by throngs who sought to shake their hands.

Major Segrave here was not quite so outspoken in his determination to hold the automobile record as he was said to be at Cherbourg. He indicated, however, that he might try again if an American broke his record and there was no other Englishman likely to regain it.

Scrub Gridders Honored at Princeton

PRINCETON, N. J., April 13.—(AP.)—A bronze tablet to honor Princeton's scrub football players who serve each fall to develop the varsity team has been erected on the walls of the university field house.

The memorial is the gift of William A. Coursen, '81, of Atlanta, Ga., who long has been an interested follower of Princeton athletics. Coursen contends that the success of any football team depends upon the prowess of the scrubs.

Long's Sport Comment

in view of the Magee and McLaughlin appointments, not to mention the fact that Dolly Stark's home isn't a thousand miles from Boston, it would seem that an umpire of Brown's ability and standing is entitled to a great deal more consideration than he has been given.

THE recent action of Johnny Risko in busting up Otto Von Porat, after the latter had paved the way for an entry into the heavyweight championship elimination circle by defeating Tom Heeney, recalled to Hype Igoe what Tex Richard once told him: "Risko is just a spoiler," Richard said. 'He 'has spoiled every good card that I ever had. The minute I get a guy up on top, along comes this fellow to bust him around. He can't fight a lick on earth, but he can lick all the fighters." A glance over Risko's record bears out Richard's statement that he is a "spoiler." He never gets anywhere himself, but he has been a thorn in the side of other heavies who were headed for the big goal or in line for profitable matches. When Jack Sharkey was first sitting pretty for a meeting with Gene Tunney, Risko came in and ruined the plan by defeating the sailor. He spoiled other prospects for Rojas, Paulino, Delaney and even Godfrey before toppling over the nice championship air castles that Von Porat had built for himself.

REIGH COUNT IS BEATEN AGAIN

NEWBURY, England, April 13.—(AP.)—Athford, by Blandford, out of Athasi and owned by W. Barnett, won the Newbury Cup today.

Reigh Count, famous American colt, making his second start on an English racetrack, again failed to place.

Gangwarily was second and Residue was third in a field of 20.

Athford won by a half length, while there was a neck between second and third.

The betting was 8 to 1, 7 to 1, and 33 to 1.

MISS SACHS CHAMPION

PINEHURST, N. C., April 13.—Marjorie Sachs, of Boston, is the eleventh North and South woman's tennis champion.

With the show all to themselves, for the first time since the North and South men's singles started, Miss Sachs and Clara Greenspan, also of Boston, settled that issue yesterday in a final match that went to the former by a 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 score.

Sadadazu Onda, of Japan, and John Van Ryn, of Orange, N. J., the masculine finalists, were given time out and their final match moved up to today. They devoted their court exercise to the semi-finals of the men's doubles, with Onda and Tamio Abe, his Oriental compatriot, teamed against Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex. Van Ryn and Allison won in straight sets, 6-1, 6-2.

In the other doubles match, Jack Wright and Marcel Rainville, Canadian Davis Cup players, defeated Howard Voschell, of New York, and Elmer J. Griffith, of San Francisco, 6-4, 6-2.

The final of the women's doubles went to Virginia Hilleary, of Philadelphia, and Dorothy Andrus, of New York. They defeated Miss Greenspan and Mrs. A. S. Lamme, of New York, 5-7, 6-4, 7-5.

MANDELL WINS OVER DUKE

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., April 13.—(AP.)—Sammy Mandell, world lightweight champion, pushed Benny Duke around the ring for 10 tedious rounds last night and received the verdict from Elmer (Slim) McClelland, referee.

Duke, who literally and figuratively was but a home-town boy, pressed the champion in the first three rounds, but missed frequently. Mandell took matters into his own hands in the fourth and gave a sparring exhibition which piled up a long lead, but did little harm to Duke.

They fought at 137 pounds, two pounds over the lightweight limit, and each just made that figure.

Two knockouts in the preliminaries were the only excitement on the program. Andy Shanks, of Ludington, Mich., 207, knocked out Tony Mishka, of Grand Rapids, 185, in the fourth round of a scheduled six-round bout, and John Moore, of Ludington, was knocked out by Lyle Blaine, of Grand Rapids, in the third round of a carded six-rounder. They are lightweights.

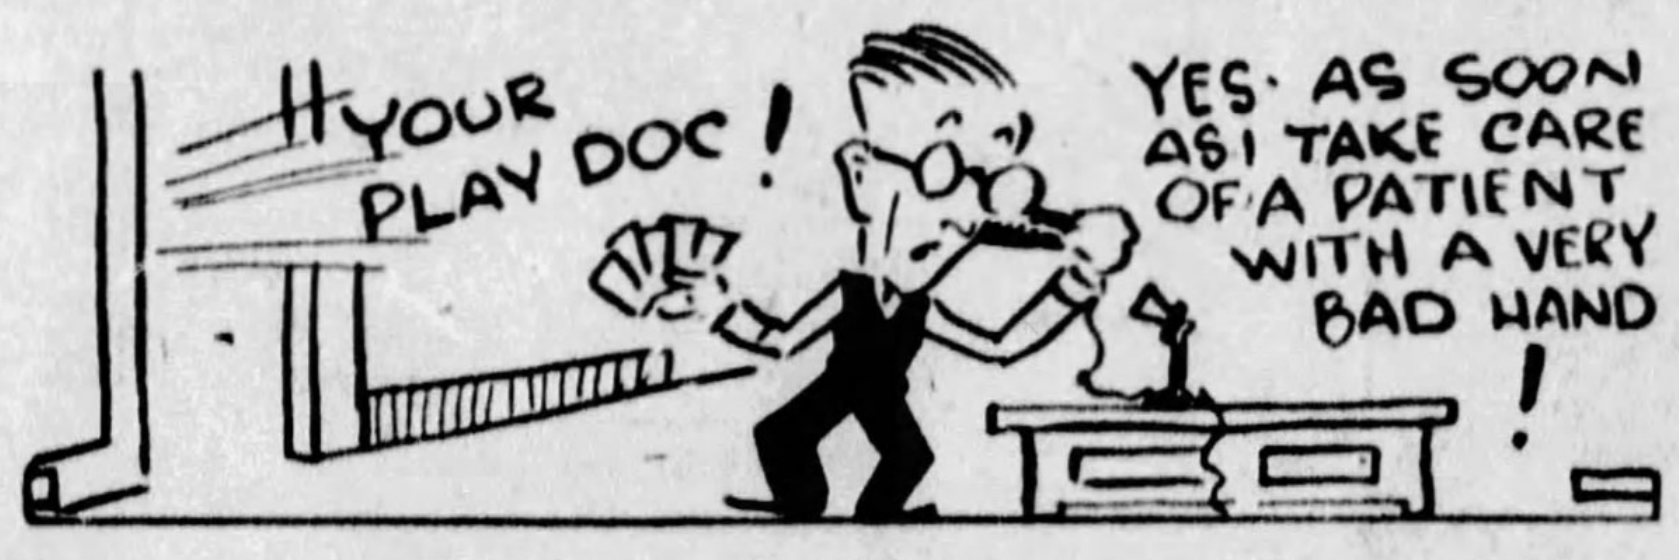
SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

NO PROFESSIONAL men of the town are bothered as much as physicians. Knowing a few of the guild—in their non-professional moments—when they attend card games, boxing shows and baseball games it is a common experience to see them interrupted in their enjoyments by a call to duty. It is to their credit, too, that even when one of them is holding three aces in poker or a game-winning no trump hand in bridge they are obedient to the demands of the telephone. Specialists get away from such inconveniences by keeping only office hours, and discouraging encroachments at their dinner tables, but the general practitioner is pretty nearly a slave to his calling. And their efforts are not unappreciated.



YOUR PLAY DOC!
YES. AS SOON AS I TAKE CARE OF A PATIENT WITH A VERY BAD HAND!

The column is moved to such general and common place observation by an unique idea evolved by a local doctor who is somewhat of a baseball fanatic. He had to give up baseball last season because he was afraid he would not be available to patients, but this year better days are ahead. The doctor in question has arranged with that efficient gentleman at Forbes Field, Sam Watters, secretary of the pirates, to have a telephone installed in the doctor's private box. In so far as the records show, and I have examined them since the day when Abner Somebody Or Other, first invented the game, Pittsburgh is the only place in the country with a telephone in a baseball booth.

A lighter picture of a doctor would show a gentleman at a telephone, looking at three aces, while he says into the phone: "I have a patient with a bad hand here and as soon as I take care of him I'll be right up."

COUNCILMAN HARRY LITTLE, who can see no sense in hitting a golf ball, and walking after it, preferring to take another ball and hitting it from where he hit the original ball, will be interested to know suggestions have come in from the report here of his game. One observer suggests a rolling chair while another is partial to over-head baskets—strung along like the old parcel baskets in department stores—to carry the golfer from one place to another.

One of the interesting and remarkable men around town is John Fremont Moschell, aged 73, a deputy coroner of the county. It is not uncommon for this veteran to do his eight hours' work and then give a demonstration of a tap dance, a la George Primrose. "Stuff" Moschell, as he is known to thousands, is a Shakespearian scholar, has a good voice, and can run over some of the Bard's passages in a manner to arouse admiration. He has seen every great actor who has played in Pittsburgh in the last 60 years.

ONCE a long time ago Mr. Moschell appeared behind the footlights in a play called: "Rip Van Winkle." One of his parts, according to his biographer, was that of the little man who carried a keg up the Catskills when hen-pecked Rip went into that vicinity to make whoopee.

Felix Cellurale, a leader of one of our dance bands, knows how to accompany a quartet. At the South Hills Club a very famous quartet gave a recital and Mr. Cellurale did great work. "Down by the Old Mill Stream" seemed to go over better than any other number, with "Sweet Genevieve," a very, very close second. One difficulty Mr. Cellurale reported, was that while two of the quartet were singing the former song, the other two insisted on singing the latter.

When John Cancaller, arrested in a prohibition raid at South Fifth and East Carson streets, arrived at prohibition headquarters, he handed some papers to one W. S. McGinnes, agents alleged. The agents arrested McGinnes and charged him with receiving documentary evidence from a federal prisoner and concealing it. The agents declared McGinnes had trailed Cancaller's auto, which had been seized along with five gallons of alleged whisky.

The agents conducted three other raids. Arrests and seizures reported were: Paul Angelson, restaurant in Freeport road, 31 bottles of beer; Joseph Krobot, club, 38 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, 16 gallons of alleged moonshine; Simon Muscia and A. Holowell, saloon, 1219 Woods Run avenue, two gallons of alleged moonshine, 21 quarts of beer, one quart of kimmel.

DENTIST ASKS ORDER AGAINST RIVAL

Suit has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Dr. Jules L. Mallas against Dr. A. H. Galde, McKeesport dentists, asking that the defendant be restrained from following his practice in that city, because of an alleged violation of agreement.

Dr. Mallas claims that on September 1, 1928, he entered into an agreement with Dr. Galde to engage in practice with him and to pay him 60 per cent of the net profits. In case of a severance of relationship, the defendant was not to engage in the practice of dentistry for five years thereafter, within 15 miles of the City of McKeesport.

He asks through his counsel that the defendant be enjoined from conducting business, as he claims the doctor has opened an office in McKeesport to the detriment of his practice.

Braddock Installs New Fire Plugs

Replacing of old water lines in Talbot avenue, Braddock, and the installation of new fire plugs have been begun in anticipation of the paving plans being made for the thoroughfare.

Mrs. Hart, who is contesting the case, denied most of the allegations of the husband. He claimed that she had repeatedly insulted his friends; that she was sulky and that when she had "one of her tantrums" she made his life unbearable.

MINISTER JOINS DRIVE FOR RADIO IN SCHOOLS

Every room in every school should be equipped with first-class radio receiving sets, according to a statement issued to the Sun-Telegraph by the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, of Christ Church, Liberty avenue. Dr. Day feels that, by means of the radio, subjects can be brought home to the pupil as they never have been heretofore.

Gives Example

REV. DR. ALBERT E. DAY

The inauguration brought the United States through the air to the schoolchild as a "living reality rather than a subject for textbook and for examination," says Dr. Day.

The statement follows:

"The boys and girls who were permitted to 'listen in' on the inauguration ceremonies on March 4 gained an appreciation of the meaning and function of government which hours in classes and in private study could not have imparted to them. As the scene unfolded before their imaginations, the United States of America became to them a living reality rather than a subject for a textbook and for examination.

VALUE ILLUSTRATED

"That experience is a symbol of many educational and life values which the radio can bring to the schoolroom. A first class set ought to be a part of the equipment of every room in the public schools. It will take its place alongside the library as a valuable ally of parents and teachers who seek an instructed citizenship."

The set which the campaign will place in the schools is an eight-tube No. 53 Atwater Kent Electrodynamic self-contained radio which sells for $138.50. In order to obtain installation, schools or schoolrooms must secure 125 new 13-week subscriptions for carrier delivery of the Sun-Telegraph.

Subscription blanks may be obtained from him, from any Stanley theater, or from school children themselves. Many business organizations are inclosing them in their delivery packages and are interesting themselves in the campaign.

FAMED KRAKOW TRUMPET HERE

A bit of old Europe's romance has dropped into Pittsburgh for a few days. In Carnegie Library, Schenley Park, there is on exhibit the Trumpet of Krakow.

Until a few years ago, the Trumpet of Krakow was unheard of outside of Europe. Yet for more than 500 years, not an hour has passed without the Trumpeter of Krakow coming out on the tower of the Church of St. Mary's in that ancient city, and sounding his melody. The instrument on exhibit here until the library's closing hour Sunday has been in use for the last 42 years, and on its horn are engraved the names of those who have served with it.

Back in the thirteenth century, it is recorded in old Polish records, examined by Eric Kelly, American author, the custom of blowing the trumpet at the stroke of every hour was established. In 1241, the Tartars over-ran Poland, and the custom was lost or stopped. Nearly 300 years passed before Krakow's city father revived it.

BRINGS SUIT ON WRONG CHARGE

Judge John D. Evans, of Common Pleas Court, dismissed Charles A. Houck's divorce libel against Hilda Houck during the progress of the hearing on the ground that he should have brought an action for desertion and not cruel and barbarous treatment.

Houck, who lives in Evergreen road, testified his wife had threatened to kill him and on one occasion turned on the gas. However, Houck made the mistake of saying that although he was afraid of his wife, he tried to have her come back and live with him.

Judge Evans informed the libellant that he could not grant him a divorce on the grounds set up in the libel, but that he had a good case for desertion.

The libellant, married in 1887, told Judge Elder W. Marshall that his wife put "moth balls" in his coffee and that he is afraid of her. On another occasion he claims that his wife came into his room in a quiet manner and turned on the gas, believing him to be asleep at the time. Hottes claims he was so afraid of his wife that he slept "behind a heavy lock."

When the wife took the stand she denied her husband's allegations and declared that he had abused her and mistreated her.

Judge James B. Drew, in pronouncing the sentence, said the jail physician had found Barrett to be mentally defective, but not sufficiently so that he does not know the difference between right and wrong.

Barrett was released last June after his first term and was not rearrested until October, but in pleading guilty to the charges on which he was sentenced anew, admitted that last July, only a month after regaining his freedom, he had held up and robbed J. C. O'Donnell, 4107 Winterburn street, in Hazelwood avenue. He made a bodily assault upon his victim and robbed him of $20. For this the Judge imposed the seven to 12-year sentence. He also pleaded guilty to holding up Michael Podolyak, 307 Greenfield avenue, in Oakland, last October. On this charge he was sentenced to two to five years to run concurrent with the longer term. He shed copious tears when being led from the court room.

NEW YORK, April 13.

Hank Quizzes Queenie After She Returns From the Party Intoxicated

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Eddie Kerns, song plugger, has written the music for "The Broadway Melody," a big revue to be produced by the famous Zanfield. For two years Eddie has been engaged to "Hank" Mahoney and now he sees his way clear to marry her. She and her younger sister, Queene, are playing in vaudeville and Eddie summons them to New York and tells them he has managed to place them in the revue. They are overjoyed, but Eddie suddenly discovers that he's lost his heart to Queenie who has developed into a startling beauty in the two years since he saw her last. He keeps his secret from "Hank" and the girls turn down a long vaudeville contract for a chance to make good in the revue. Zannie, after seeing the "Mahoney Sisters" perform, decides that he could only use Queenie. She, however, appeals to him to also give her sister a chance in the show. He consents. "Hank" believes that she put it over. During a dress rehearsal Eddie shows the sisters the big ad in the newspaper announcing their coming to Broadway. When Hank kisses Eddie, Queenie cries. Zannie gives Queenie a place in the revue. She makes an impression and the two "angels" of the revue invite her out to dine after the show. Dore, one of the show girls, tells Queenie to watch her step with Worthington. Eddie questions Queenie about "Warry" and tells her to keep away from him. Ignoring Eddie's protest she goes out with Warriner. When "Hank" arrives home with Eddie she discovers Queenie in. The two "angels" are disappointed when Queenie wouldn't play their game. However, "Warry" sends the other half of the $1,000 bill to Queenie. Just as she is talking to him over the telephone, "Hank" returns and finds the torn $1,000 bill. She is worried about Queenie, who hides her sudden riches. "Warry" makes another attempt to get Queenie to go out with him. Meantime, Eddie comes in and tries to persuade Queenie to have nothing to do with "Warry." He is holding her in his arms when "Hank" comes in. She asks if they have been fighting and Queenie then leaves the room. "Hank" tells Eddie the plans for the birthday party. Queenie disappoints them by going to a party given in her honor by "Warry" at his apartment.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

HANK was in bed, but not asleep. Dawn was creeping through the windows over the jagged skyline back of the Princeton Hotel. She had tossed and tossed until her sides were sore. And she had wept until her eyes were red. Each time the elevator had stopped and its door grated open and back she had stopped breathing and her heart had missed beats. As the night wore on and though the stops had grown less frequent. All was still now and had been for some time.

Again—and this time the sound was followed by the fumbling at the lock. She heard Queenie come in with exaggerated caution. But locking the door from the inside, with the fumbling fingers of her reaction from the night of giddy gaiety and bubbling vintage was as noisy to Hank as a stage glass-crash. Queenie threw off her evening wrap she had bought with part of the $1,000-bill and, in the evening gown she had picked up with the rest of it, she tiptoed a bit unsteadily into the bedroom.

Queenie started disrobing. Hank coughed nervously. Queenie, her gown off one shoulder, turned and said:

"Oh—still awake, Hank?"

She thrust her arm toward her sister. Hank's weary, tear-stung eyes almost popped out. On Queenie's white wrist there blazed a bracelet of cut diamonds and emeralds, which glittered through the semi-dawn.

"Ever see anything as gorgeous as that?" she chuckled.

A sad little crooked smile possessed Hank's mouth. She set her jaw again, determined not to cry or make a scene. Queenie was quite obviously "lit."

Queenie struggled out of the gown and sat on the edge of the bed to peel off her stockings. As she sat down she upset a little pile of packages which had been put on her side of the bed for her return. A little one, the cube-shaped one containing the reset diamond chip that Hank had planned as the stellar item of the surprise, fell to the floor. Queenie kicked it aside with her foot and it wobbled under a chair.

In her nightgown, Queenie crawled in beside Hank.

"Take another eyeful o' that ice," she giggled, as she made passes under Hank's nose with the arm that wore the platinum gem-studded bracelet. "I could float a vaul'ville circuit on that."

"It—it's a knockout," gasped Hank. "Go to sleep now, dear."

"In a minute—so you like that li'l ol' bracelet?"

"An' that ain't all—that ain't even the overture o' this p'duction. I'm goin' to have an auto an' an apartment on Park avenue an' all that goes with it."

Hank came up with her head on her elbow.

"Is he—did he—are you going to be married?"

Her eyes burned as they concentrated on Queenie for the answer.

"Oh—I don't know—maybe—we didn't get that far—"

"Oh, Queenie—my God—do you know what you're sayin'?"

"I know. I know all right. No more o' this dump . . . you're going to have Eddie an' I'm goin' to have everything else in the world worth havin' . . . don't you worry about me, Hank—I'll be all coppessetti—it's all goin' to come out hotsy totsy for the queen o' the lost boat. . . go to sleep, Hankie, o' sweetie—Eddie can write the songs for my next show—I'm going to be starred—by Zannie no less . . . li'l Queenie is in the big dough now."

Hank shook her a little. Queenie was beginning to talk in blurred syllables, drifting off to sleep.

"Aw, don't Hank," she pleaded. "I'm all in—an' we open t'night. Let a guy get a li'l sleep, will you? I'll tell you all about it."

"Sleep? I haven't closed an eye. A few minutes more won't kill neither of us . . . tell me what—tell me what happened—you hear—everything."

"Aw, jimminy crickets. It's a long story. We ate and we danced and we drank, and Warry slipped me this bracelet and . . . well, and then he drove me to the door . . . there's it ain't such a long story after all."

"Is that—is that all?"

"Pract'c'ly. You should o' seen the flowers—oh, baby."

"Well—where did all the autos an' flats an bein' starred an' all come in?"

"He told me. They were all his idea. He's heebyjeeby over me. Gee, does he hurl a mean party! He lives up in the sky on top of a building. He's got a private elevator runnin' only to his roost. It's a bungalow, he calls it. If it's a bungalow, the Queen o' Sheba lived in a cottage. It's got a half acre o' real garden around it."

"Then—what's the Park avenue apartment gag? What does he need that for?"

"I don't know. He said he had it all picked out an' was havin' it decorated. Can you imagine—they're decorating an apartment on Park avenue 'specially for one o' the Mahoney Sisters . . . Remember the room we had in the hotel down by the depot in Moose Jaw? Those were the days, eh, Hankie?"

"But—why isn't that magnificent home on the roof enough—if—he's goin' to marry you?"

"I didn' say he's goin' to marry me."

"Then—then what? Wake up, Queenie. For the saints' sake, you're no babe in the crib. You got a pretty fair line on life. I've told you enough an' you've heard an' seen enough in show business. Just what was his proposition?"

"I told you. You ain't no babe in the crib, neither."

Hank seized her little sister by the wrist, pulled her over, and with her face leaning down and almost touching Queenie's, she breathed:

"So—that's it!"

"So what's which?"

"Well, it don't go. I won't stand for it. I didn't mother you an' bring you up an' through for that. I didn't make a Christian, decent, hard-workin' an' respectable girl out o' you for such as that. Not even for a Warriner to get away with it. You hear me?"

"Aw, Hank—can't we chew this over tomorrow? I'm so sleepy."

"No. We're goin' to have it out right now. You didn' tell me yet all that happened . . . now come clean or I'll get dirty."

"Gee, Hank, who fed you western sandwiches? You're fierce this morning. Whatever it is you want to ask me can keep . . . how was the party?"

"Oh, it was a real social triumph. Just like the other one. Not up on the roof, o' course. Diamond and emerald bracelets were distrib'ted as souvenirs an' autos are favors to the ladies."

"Success! That's jus' dandy. Now can I go eppy eeepy? Kiss me good night, Hank, an' be a sport."

"Listen here, Queenie. I must ask you one thing . . . you know . . . did you tell me all that happened—all that I ought to know?"

"Sure. All that you ought to know."

She smiled as she ran over in her slightly fuddled mind a few of the high spots of the evening and the night.

"What's that smile for? Are you holding out on me—something that you—you think I shouldn't know?"

"Say—what is this, third degree? I'm 19. Yest'day was my birthday."

"An' don't I know it. I'll never forget it."

"Neither will I. It sure turned my life around. I learned a lot I never knew before—an' forgot a lot I always thought I knew."

"Just what do you mean by that? Queenie—Queenie, wake up—you'll drive me off my nut. Why do you duck my question? You know exac'ly what I'm drivin' at."

"Well, then keep on drivin'—see the green light?" and she held up the bracelet and pointed to an emerald.

"Cut the wise-crackin'. I've lost my sense o' humor. You answer my question in plain United States."

"What question? Did you ask me a question?"

"I asked you a question and you know it, and you know what it is. And you'll answer. And it better be the right answer, too."

"Or else?"

"Or else I'll stand this burg so far on end you'll need a ladder to get from the Bat'ry to the Bronx. I don' care how much jack this Warriner is got. There's some law left in this country—"

"Oh—Queenie—I never thought I'd hear words like that from you. But we'll pass that—it ain't important. But the other—the other is life an' death to me . . . did he—are you—"

"Say," said Queenie with a disgusted expression. "If you don't quit hammerin' on that one spot, I'm goin' to get good and sore . . . now get this an' get it once an' for all an' get it straight—your precious li'l lamb is pure as the driven snow—so far."

Hank fell back on her pillow. Her hands clasped and her fingers interwove. The tears squirted from her eyes.

"Thank God!" she breathed. "Oh, dear God, I thank you!"

"Fine. Now that's settled," said Queenie.

Then she turned her back to Hank, settled herself into a comfortable position, and in half a minute Hank heard her soft, regular breathing. Queenie was asleep. Hank got up. She tucked the cover over Queenie's bare shoulder, and as she slid the limp arm under she held it in her hand a moment and stared down on the diamond and emerald bracelet.

It sparkled even more brilliantly than before. Perhaps it was the rays of the sun, now fully risen. Or maybe it was the tear that dropped on it.

Smuggled Gems :-: By :-: Marian Buxton Clark — Daily Short Story

CAPT. TOMLINSON frowned—and reread the radiogram. "Darn it all," he mused, "why couldn't these infernal jewel smugglers take another boat to America, and let me sail in peace?"

"One million dollars in diamonds smuggled on board your boat," he read once more. "Handsome young man with much baggage—assumed name, Gordon White. Watch baggage constantly—authorities notified in United States. Will give thorough search when you land."

Capt. Tomlinson frowned again—folded the radiogram carefully and locked it away in his safe. Then he rang for the steward. "Send Mary Ellen to me," he ordered when that grave person had arrived.

"Very good, sir," replied the steward as he withdrew.

Capt. Tomlinson drew a long sigh—then tapped his desk nervously as he waited for his door to open again.

In an incredibly short time it opened—to admit the loveliest bit of femininity that ever sailed the seas. Eyes as blue as the peaceful Pacific waters themselves—hair as fair and shining as a golden sunset. Add to these a form that could gain a prolonged contract from any theatrical producer, a brain that matched the keenest, and you have a picture of Mary Ellen.

"You wanted me, Sir?" she questioned, and advanced toward the captain.

Capt. Tomlinson smiled and nodded. Then asked abruptly—"Done any vamping lately, Mary Ellen?"

The girl laughed as she answered—"As ordered—captain."

"Very good," replied Tomlinson—then, gravely, "Next victim under name Gordon White—stateroom 311—million dollars in diamonds."

Mary Ellen nodded—and took mental note of the captain's words. As she turned to leave, he arose from his desk and came to her side.

"He's handsome Mary Ellen, according to the radiogram, so don't lose your heart." Then putting his hand in his pocket, brought out a small, shining object.

"Your own—and your country's honor, Mary Ellen," the captain half whispered, as he put the automatic into her hand.

"I—understand," the girl replied, and her blue eyes were not childish now—"a stateroom flirtation," she ended briefly.

Capt. Tomlinson nodded—and closed the door softly as she withdrew.

That afternoon he met Mary Ellen again—but not by the flicker of an eyelash did either acknowledge the least recognition, for Mary Ellen's steamer chair was very, very close to that of a handsome young man, and her blue eyes were smiling invitingly up into his.

Capt. Tomlinson took in the tableau at a glance. None of the promenaders dreamed how his fists clenched in his pockets, or that he muttered over and over again under his breath—"Darn it all."

Three days later Mary Ellen and Gordon White stood close together at the railing—looking out over the vast expanse of water. In the moonlight Capt. Tomlinson could not see their faces plainly, but he could imagine how Mary Ellen's blue eyes must be luring poor White to his doom.

The captain uttered his favorite phrase—"Darn it all," then added—"It isn't fair, either—any man would surrender to Mary Ellen's charms." Then suddenly he groaned aloud as he realized that he longed to change places with Gordon White at that railing. But five minutes later he was the same competent Capt. Tomlinson, head of the steamer Cedric, as he radioed to officials in Washington:

"Operator Twenty-nine on duty reports progress."

The next morning the steward announced, "Mr. Gordon White asked to have Mary Ellen placed at his table."

And the captain nodded—then said gravely, "Clear the passageways near stateroom 311—there must be no interference."

The steward's face was impassive, as he answered, "Very good, Sir," and softly closed the Captain's door.

Then another radiogram flashed to Washington—"Operator twenty-nine reports further progress."

And that afternoon, while Gordon White ordered tea for two served in his stateroom, Capt. Tomlinson paced nervously about the deck. One question burned in his brain—"Would Mary Ellen use the pistol?"

Then he waited endless hours in his office, his eyes seemingly glued to its outer door. After what seemed an eternity—the knob slowly turned and Gordon White backed into the room—his hands raised high above his head. After him walked Mary Ellen, a shining automatic in her right hand. In her left hand she carried a large square traveling bag.

Capt. Tomlinson leaped to his feet—covered White with his own pistol, and took the bag from Mary Ellen.

"Be careful," she warned, "they'll get away."

"They?" repeated the Captain and glanced closely at the bag. It was of fine leather, but what one at first glance took to be graining was in reality hundreds of tiny holes.

"Air holes," stated Mary Ellen, in answer to his look of amazement. "Peek in the top carefully."

Capt. Tomlinson opened the bag a fraction of an inch, and cried out in amazement, as he spied a half-dozen beautiful pigeons.

Mary Ellen nodded at his look of inquiry—"Carriers," she stated—"with a million dollar's worth of diamonds in those bags on their legs."

"You mean—?" gasped the Captain, incredulously.

"I mean," replied Mary Ellen, "that tonight, our last night out, these pigeons were to be freed and would carry the gems safely to their destination where accomplices are waiting. Tomorrow, when we docked, authorities might search every inch of his luggage but no diamonds would be found."

Capt. Tomlinson nodded—"And this bag—?"

"Would be at the bottom of the sea. The air holes would fill it with water in an instant."

Tomlinson glowed—"Mary Ellen, you're a wonder." And slipping a pair of handcuffs on the still amazed White—rang for two officers to take him away.

As the door closed after them—Mary Ellen slumped into a chair and covered her face with her hands. "I—hated it all—" she cried, "he—believed in me."

The Captain patted her shoulder—"I—had to tell myself over and over that I was Operator 29—for—my country."

Capt. Tomlinson took her small hands in his—"Did you care for him, Mary Ellen?" he whispered.

She shook her head—"No—" then seeing the flood of relief in the Captain's eyes added, rougishly—"but he surely was—handsome."

Capt. Tomlinson walked over to his desk and started to write, then handed the paper to the girl.

"I love you, Mary Ellen," he whispered, "shall I send this message?" She read the message and nodded—so, of course, Capt. Tomlinson kissed her—for this is what it said:

"Operator 29 reports capture of smuggler and gems. Begs to resign from duty at once, as future trips on the Cedric will be taken as the wife of her captain—Charles Tomlinson."

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel, made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build me up and for the Change of Life and I can't get along without it. I lost about twenty pounds and I felt weak and run-down. I find it gives me strength and quiets my nerves. I have two daughters and I gave it to them when they came into womanhood and was greatly pleased at the results. I will answer any letter asking for information."—Mrs. L. E. Hanson, Waterloo, Iowa.

STOCK TRADING DULL, PRICES DECLINE

NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP.)—Extreme dullness characterized today's brief session of the stock market. Price movements were extremely irregular, but many of the leading industrial issues lost ground on heavy week-end profit-taking.

Although definite signs of credit improvement appeared in the closing days of the week, Wall Street was still disturbed by the possibility of a temporary stringency incidental to the heavy mid-month turnover of funds. Heaviness of some of the popular industrials was attributed to liquidation by large operators who had bought those stocks for a turn earlier in the week.

Further selling came into the copper shares as a result of the recent downward readjustment of red metal prices. Whereas nearly all of the leading coppers were making new high records a few weeks ago when copper prices ran up to 24 cents a pound, Cerro De Pasco today sank to a new low level for the year, and most of the others sold 10 to nearly 35 points below the year's highs.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, April 13.—Stimulated by reports of progress of farm relief measures, the wheat market here scored fresh early upturns today. Little attention was given to the fact that Liverpool wheat quotations were lower than expected. Opening a ¼c off to ¼c up, Chicago wheat later showed an all-around advance, and then reacted somewhat. Corn, oats and provisions were easy, with corn starting at ⅜c decline to ⅛c gain, and subsequently holding near the initial range.

Washington messages telling of farm relief conferences with President Hoover and of other indications that the course of proposed legislation was being rapidly smoothed out were absorbingly perused by wheat traders today and were made the basis of considerable new buying of future deliveries. Other advices at hand were confidently of a bearish character. Rains at various points in Kansas and other domestic winter wheat territory were more or less responsible for wheat price setbacks at times. There were also reports current that throughout the United States spring wheat belt more seeding has been done than was the case at this time last year. Besides a majority of points in Alberta, Sask., and Manitoba were represented as now having sufficient moisture.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 13.—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 1 point to an advance of 5 points. There may have been a little selling on relatively easy cables, but the trade generally seemed inclined to ignore the Liverpool showing and prices worked up after the call on covering and some commission house buying. This was supposed to reflect nervousness after the weather outlook, some traders feeling that the wet weather reported in Texas this morning might work eastward over Sunday. July sold up to 20.02c and December to 20.00c, making net advances of about 6 to 8 points, but there was considerable week-end realizing and the improvement was not fully maintained.

The report of the Census Bureau showed domestic consumption of 632,808 bales for March, against 598,089 for February and 581,325 for March last year. These figures were slightly above a recent forecast. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 109,000 bales against 99,000 last year.

Credit Conditions Improved.

Important buying of standard industrial and railroad stock on the New York Stock Exchange this week reflects the belief of the financial leaders that the credit problem is to be solved to the satisfaction of all concerned, and particularly to the Federal Reserve Board, which has undertaken the task of acting as unofficial censor of the credit market and all its works. The third consecutive weekly shrinkage in brokers' loans was announced this week, bringing the total $366,000,000 below the total of the last week in March, and this in spite of the fact that there has been a considerable increase in the amount of new stocks and bonds floated in the outside markets by the banking houses. These new flotations require bank credit to "carry" them until distribution has been made, but in the loan compilations it all looks like brokers' loans, at least, no discrimination is made between money used in this progress and in stock speculation in the listed markets.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Tidal-Darby Deal On.

A plan to merge Tidal Osage Oil Company, a subsidiary of Tide Water Oil Company, with Darby Petroleum Corporation, on a stock exchange basis, has been approved by the board of directors of Tidal Osage, it was announced in a letter to the company's stockholders. The 631,319 capital shares of Tidal Osage Company would be exchanged, share for share, for Darby Petroleum capital shares to be authorized and issued. Both companies operate in the Mid-Continent oil fields. The proposed merger is to be voted on at a special meeting of the Tidal shareholders May 14. Tide Water Oil Company and other large stockholders have indicated approval of the plan, the letter said.

Darby Petroleum reports for the year ended December 31, 1928, net profit of $803,558, after interest, depreciation, depletion and federal taxes, equal to $2.07 a share on 388,073 no-par shares. This compares with net of $415,585, or $1.07 a share in 1927.

Freight Estimate Higher.

The car service division estimated in a report to the directors of the Association of Railway Executives, which opened its spring meeting yesterday, that railroad freight this year would be greater than either 1928 or 1927, and only 1 per cent less than in the boom year of 1926. "Traffic during the current year," the report read, "is expected to amount to 52,553,813 cars, which would be a reduction of 545,006 cars, or 1 per cent under the actual loading of revenue freight in 1926, for which year the total was 53,098,819 cars." The high mark in 1926 is attributed to the large freight volume in coal for export to England.

Trade Prospects Favorable.

Dun's weekly trade review says: "Most of the statistical and other tests by which the status of general business is measured continue to show favorable results. Two weeks of April have passed with previous progress sustained and in some instances extended, and hesitation arising from monetary and speculative uncertainties is not widespread. Varying degrees of commercial activity naturally appear and some unsatisfactory aspects exist but encouraging phases, rather than adverse elements, retain the predominant place. New data that have recently come out have revealed some unusual characteristics of industrial expansion, including the unexampled steel output, the largest unfilled orders in this field in three years, and evidences of further gains in the textile division. Labor troubles in some southern cotton mills have been among the contrasting features, yet these controversies are being gradually adjusted and unemployment of workers through strikes or other causes is comparatively moderate."

Week's Failures Increase.

The weekly report of commercial failures by R. G. Dun & Co. shows an increase to 475 compared with 466 last week and a rise of 57 compares with the corresponding 1928 period. The increase occurred chiefly in the East. The western section alone reported fewer defaults.

Cotton Consumption Report.

The Census Bureau places cotton consumed in March at 632,888 bales, against 598,098 a month ago, and 581,325 a year ago. Cotton on hand in consuming establishments March 31 amounted to 1,730,944 bales, against 1,746,537 in February and 1,592,977 in March, 1928. Cotton on hand in public storage and at compressors totaled 3,177,147 bales, against 3,876,215 the previous month, and 3,511,590 last year. Active spindles in March aggregated 31,103,998, against 31,007,936 a month ago and 31,432,840 a year ago. March exports were 555,986 bales, against 613,394 the previous month and 596,208 last year. March imports were 37,124 bales, against 39,720 last month and 41,433 last year.

Total consumption for eight months of this season, August 1 to March 31, amounts to 4,682,269 bales, against 4,781,694 in the same period last season.

The cotton market was steadier early in the day on fairly active covering and trade buying as well as a fair demand from commission houses. The census bureau's consumption figures for March were slightly larger than expected, but the demand seemed to have been inspired more by fears of unfavorable weather developments over the week-end and owing to firmness in the May position.

Ask Mellon Credit Aid.

Fabricators of structural steel in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana, meeting at Toledo, have wired a plea to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon asking that he use his influence with the Federal Reserve Board to reduce credit rates. The message said: "We appeal to you and through you to the Federal Reserve Board to take such steps as within your power to lighten credit costs in the industry. We find rapidly mounting cost of investment money is preventing successful marketing of private and public bonds and stock issues and therefore delaying much needed building improvement, including school, bridge, office and other structures."

Imports totaled 53,824 tons, a drop of more than 10,000 tons under February.

Wall St. Suicides; Baker, 90, Active; Traylor Bearish

By B. C. FORBES

THOMAS W. LAMONT, the human dynamo who is J. P. Morgan's principal partner, once assured me, when I expressed the fear that he was killing himself with work: "Don't worry about me, I have learned how to function smoothly. Work comes easy to me."

Many men haven't learned to function smoothly. Wall street has had an alarming series of sudden deaths, many of them carrying off relatively young men.

George F. Baker is the most shining example of smooth-working efficiency. I dropped in at the First National Bank one day this week and found him leaving to walk to a United States Steel Corporation meeting just after having attended a meeting of his own directors. And he was booked to attend a New York Central and an American Telephone meeting next day. Yet he is in his ninetieth year.

Mr. Baker long ago learned not to become flurried or excited but to take one problem at a time, consider it calmly, then make a decision. He has been aided by, first, an extraordinarily rugged constitution, and, second, by an amazing memory. Time and again railway executives have been dumbfounded at Director Baker's detailed knowledge of their properties when on inspection trips.

His methods have proved quite profitable, thank you. In three recent days his personal holdings of his own bank stock increased in value more than $30,000,000, raising the total, according to Wall Street, to better than $140,000,000. Mr. Baker's block of American Telephone stock (63,443 shares), has a market value of fully $13,000,000. And the dean of New York's bankers is among the very large stockholders in many other corporations. That will give you some idea of how much wealth he has accumulated. Incidentally, he has shared it 50-50 with his only son, George F., Jr., who aids his father in running the First National. The younger Baker, like the present J. P. Morgan, has no intention of slaving himself to death.

TALKING of enormous fortunes, did you know that John D. Rockefeller sometime ago turned over the bulk of his millions to his only son, John D., Jr.? Henry Ford several years ago began turning over a generous slice of his fortune to his only son, Edsel.

Curious, isn't it, that many of America's richest men have only one son? Rockefeller, Ford, Baker, Mellon, each has one son, as had the original J. P. Morgan and Jacob H. Schiff, the heads of America's two foremost international banking houses, also Charles E. Mitchell, John H. Patterson, Samuel H. Insull, E. H. Doheny, Clarence Dillon, A. R. Erskine, Bernard M. Baruch. Among notables having no sons, are Charles M. Schwab, Pierre DuPont, George Eastman (a bachelor), A. P. Sloan, Jr., Henry L. Doherty (a bachelor), John N. Willys, James Speyer, Adolph Ochs, Cyrus H. K. Curtis. Andrew Carnegie was in the same class, as were J. Ogden Armour, Frank W. Woolworth, James B. Duke, Alexander Graham Bell, E. H. Gary.

ONE young Stock Exchange broker who died tragically suddenly a week ago was making money at such a rate that he could not be persuaded to tear himself away from the gruelling grind. One of his intimate friends, a youngish banker, warned him only a little while ago that he was committing suicide and urged him to relax. He listened patiently, appeared to be impressed, then said: "I'll do it. I'll arrange to take a spell off after the first of July." April finds him in his grave.

And there are others inviting a like fate.

MELVIN A. TAYLOR, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, interviewed in Louisville—he's a Kentuckian—made these clear-cut statements, which you may want to consider seriously:

"In my judgment the stock market will be very much lower within the next six months. I consider Charles E. Mitchell's action justified. In Chicago we did the same thing. On the Tuesday we were calling money, but when the situation got out of hand we did not want to see the collapse of the stock market and made loans.

"We want to see liquidation. It is the desire of every man who is interested in the continued prosperity of the country to bring about a change in public psychology and the revival of a proper perspective that would require some relation between the market price of a stock and its earnings and dividend returns. Until that time comes, the situation is dangerous. If the public will only stop and consider that no business can pay 15 and 20 per cent interest and succeed, they will understand what the situation is."

LEADING American bankers are meeting next week at Biloxi, Miss., for the spring meeting of the executive council of the American Bankers' Association. Responsible bankers are worried over the way things have been going in Wall street and over the threats of political tampering with banking legislation.

Eastern bankers as well as Far Western bankers have been overlooked for years in the selection of heads of America's national banking association. Melvin A. Traylor, Chicago, was president in 1926; Thomas R. Preston, Chattanooga, in 1927; Craig B. Hazelwood, Chicago, is president this year. John G. Lonsdale, St. Louis, is in line for next year, and Rome C. Stephenson, South Bend, Ind., for 1930.

The expectation is, however, that an Eastern banker, Harry J. Haas, of Philadelphia, who has been a very active association worker for 20 years, will this year be chosen second vice president and thus be in line for the presidency. The success of last year's monster convention at Philadelphia was due largely to the elaborate preparations made by Mr. Haas. The presidency of the A. B. A. is the highest honor American bankers can confer on one of their number.

STOCKS still look wobbly.

New Trial Is Asked In Lawrence Suit

A motion for a new trial in the suit of County Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence against E. N. Gillespie, in which Lawrence was awarded a verdict of $107,000, has been filed by Gillespie's counsel in Common Pleas Court.

Lawrence charged Gillespie with misappropriating money which Lawrence said he and his friends put into a pool to buy Guffey-Gillespie Oil Company stock. The funds put up by this group amounted to $80,500, all of which was lost, Gillespie testified, because the market broke against the pool.

Graysville Issues Bonds for Paving

WAYNESBURG, Pa., April 13.—The borough of Graysville, located in the western section of Greene County, has issued municipal bonds to the extent of $17,000, proceeds from which will be used in paving the principal streets of the town. It will be the first paving work ever done in the borough, which is the newest municipality in the county. A new highway now under construction, between Waynesburg and Wheeling will pass through Graysville. The bonds will be due serially from 1932 to 1947 and have been purchased by a Waynesburg bank.

Greenville Theater Robber Frustrated

GREENVILLE, Pa., April 13.—Nothing was missing from the offices of the Main Theater yesterday after a man climbed a telephone pole, opened a window and ransacked the place. It is thought he was frightened away.

New King Boris Love Rumor Denied

900 Ounces Bar Gold Stolen by Bandits

NEW YORK, April 13.—Nine hundred ounces of pure bar gold, valued at $18,150, which was stolen from two messengers of the Irving Smelting and Refining Company, of Irvington, N. J., in a daylight hold-up, was being sought by New York and New Jersey police today. The holdup occurred a block and a half from the plant yesterday. The messengers were carrying the gold in two sacks to the United States assay office, when two men, their faces masked and with drawn guns, stepped from a doorway and forced them into an alley. A large sedan drew up to the curb. One man remained at the wheel, another jumped out and joined the two in the alley, and the third stood holding the door open.

Probe Clevelander's Death in Mystery

NEW YORK, April 13.—(INS.)—An autopsy performed here today on the body of Arthur Morgan Smith, wealthy and socially prominent Cleveland manufacturer, revealed no trace of alcohol in the man's stomach and also that his death had been caused by a cerebral hemorrhage, resulting from a fractured skull and lacerated brain.

Smith died after he was released by the police, who had held him prisoner for half a night. He was arrested when a patrolman found him walking around in a dazed condition. An investigation has been launched.

Wheat Rate Should Stand, Disque Rules

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP.)—A recommendation that the Interstate Commerce Commission leave undisturbed the present rates on wheat and flour to territory east of Chicago from milling points in the Northwest and Southwest, was made today by William A. Disque, examiner for the commission.

He advised that a complaint of the Southwestern Millers' League, representing the flour milling industry on the Missouri River, against the present rate adjustments be dismissed and that the commission reverse a finding along the lines sought by the complaint.

The Disque report said the Southwestern millers held that their Minneapolis competitors had unfair advantages in the rate arrangements.

Senator King Attacks Hoover's Oil Policy

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP.)—Questioning the authority of President Hoover to withdraw the public lands from oil operations, Senator King, Democrat, Utah, declared yesterday he would ask for an inquiry of the President's action by the Senate Judiciary committee at the forthcoming session.

Senator King believes that under the 1920 leasing act, it is mandatory upon the executive branch of the government to permit prospecting of the public lands with a view to developing oil fields.

4,000 Students Face Quiz in Boy's Death

CHICAGO, April 13.—(AP.)—Each of the 4,000 students of the John Marshall Grammar and High Schools is to be questioned under the police plan for finding out who was responsible for the death yesterday of nine-year-old Joseph Stein.

The boy returned from school complaining of having been beaten by older boys. Half an hour later he died. A post mortem examination showed an injury to the temple caused death.

Traveling Salesman Of Dope Gets 10 Yrs.

BALTIMORE, April 13.—(AP.)—Joseph J. Preller, alleged traveling dope salesman, said by narcotic officials to have operated between New York and Atlanta, dispensing his wares in cities between, yesterday pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 10 years in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta by Judge Morris A. Soper in United States District Court.

John West, Negro, was sentenced to 15 months in Atlanta on his plea of guilty to the sale of three capsules of heroin.

Premier of Poland Resigns as Protest

WARSAW, April 13.—(INS.)—Premier Bartel of Poland resigned his portfolio yesterday as a protset against the anti-parliamentary activities of Minister of War Pilsudski.

Pilsudski, who is reported to be suffering from a nervous ailment, recently addressed an open letter to members of Parliament, berating them in the most seathing terms for their opposition to his policies.

UNITED ENGINEERING QUIET IN LIST HERE

United Engineering and Foundry, which has been the active member of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange list since the middle of the week, appeared to be temporarily stabilized around the 46 level in today's short session.

This figure compares with a high of above 49 yesterday, and low, from which the recent upturn started, of 42⅛ early in the week. There was no further news bearing on the situation which was responsible for the concurrent advances in Engineering and American Rolling Mill. The license granted to United States Steel to use Rolling Mill's continuous mill process for sheet rolling will probably be followed by the taking out of rights by other big steel companies. Bethlehem is expected to do so shortly. Installation of the equipment is expected to be made by United Engineering.

Quotations in the general list here showed only moderate changes from those prevailing on the close last night. Business was in light volume and was not concentrated in any particular issue or group. The fuels held close to the levels established yesterday with only minor fluctuations noted in that section. Arkansas Gas common held at a small fraction above 5 on moderate trading activity.

The new Davison Coke and Iron preferred sold again at 102⅛, as against the issuing price of 102. This stock is looked upon favorably from the investment standpoint and also has a speculative attraction by reason of participating features.

BANKS CUTTING LOANS UNDER PRESSURE

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

AMERICAN industry and foreign lenders have assumed a larger share of the task of financing stock market operations, while the pressure brought to bear by the Federal Reserve Board has had a pronounced effect in forcing banks to reduce their call loans.

A comparison of the last statement of brokers' loans with the previous announcements shows that loans made by New York banks for their own account dropped below the billion dollar mark for the first time since November 14. The amount of $915,000,000 compares with a high for the New York banks of $1,516,000,000 on January 2.

The out of town banks showed loans at the lowest point since September 12, 1928. The total for these of $1,631,000,000 on the last statement compared with a high of $1,931,000,000 on February 6.

ALTHOUGH the position taken by the Federal Reserve Board has resulted in declines in loans of $366,000,000 from the peak on March 20, only $52,000,000 consisted of reductions in the loans "for the account of others." The rest of the retrenchment was made by the banks. No one knows how much of a cut the Federal Reserve desires; it is doubtful if the board is of one mind on the subject itself; but at least there is little ground now left for complaint about the alleged diversion of funds from commercial to speculative channels.

Federal Reserve bank ratios of total reserves to deposit and note liabilities also showed a marked improvement this week. The statement of condition as of March 10 showed a ratio of 73.8 per cent for the 12 districts combined. This compared with 71.5 per cent in the previous week, and with 71.6 per cent a year ago.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank showed an even more impressive improvement. Its ration was 81.9 per cent compared with 81 per cent in the preceding week and with 74 per cent a year ago.

ONE analysis of the Federal Reserve policy points to the fact that if all the $5,427,000,000 of brokers' loans were paid off, no additional funds would be released for the use of business and agriculture, provided the banks used the funds to pay off their rediscounts, thus bringing the latter to the so-called "normal" figures of the last few years.

The supposition is purely hypothetical. Obviously, all of the brokers' loans never could be paid off, but what would happen, in case they were, would be this: A reduction in reserve requirements of member banks would take place. A shift of deposits would occur as a result of the payment of loans. Foreign funds in the call market would be released and firmness would follow in foreign exchange.

The analysis points out that the payment of brokers' loans could be made only by the withdrawal of funds on deposit in banks. These payments would reduce total deposits in banks and would also lower the amounts of reserves which it is necessary for the banks to carry.

The banks could then use these released reserve funds to pay off obligations to the Federal Reserve but, if they did this, not an additional dollar would be made available to industry and agriculture. On the other hand, if they used these funds as a basis for increasing credit to manufacturers and the farmers, the Federal Reserve condition would not be improved in the slightest.

"IN other words," says the analysis, "if banks' loans to brokers were paid off in full, either the volume of rediscount credit outstanding would be reduced, or additional credit could be extended to business, but both could not be accomplished."

The Federal Reserve Board apparently hopes to accomplish both, however. In a recent statement it said: "Continued developments in this direction (decline in brokers' loans) would release an increasing amount of credit for the use of trade, and would lead to an easing in the money situation." It is difficult to see just what the board is driving at unless it intends that only a portion of the funds withdrawn from Wall Street are to be used to lower rediscounts.

Finds Stock Loans Curb Banks' Growth

RICHMOND, Va., April 13.—(AP.)—Gov. George J. Seay, of the Fifth Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, declared before the stockholders' association yesterday that employment of funds by the public to speculate in stocks had raked much money out of the banks of the Fifth Federal Reserve District and had materially retarded their growth.

Greater co-operation of member banks with the Federal Reserve Bank, especially in a more minute scanning of the trade paper accepted by them, was urged by President C. E. Tiffany, of Warrenton, Va.

Alleged Bootlegger Aids Penniless Girl

Touched by the plight of Helen Sista, 19, released penniless from custody of the Federal court, Mike Zagorski, 1024 Bingham street, alleged bootlegger, gave her $5 yesterday to enable her to return to her parents in Erie, Pa. She had been arrested in Chicago and brought here for failure to appear as a witness in a Mann act case at the recent Erie term of court. She was directed to appear at the September Erie term. Zagorski was being detained in the U. S. marshal's office to obtain bail on a charge of violating the dry laws.

Boasted Biscuit Brings Death To Proud Cook

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., April 13.—(AP.)—Alfred Behrman, 50, a North Pelham delicatessen clerk, boasted of his ability as a cook, but the biscuit he made to prove it killed him. By error he used roach powder instead of baking powder.

Arthur Weinter, his employer, also ate of the biscuit, and had to receive medical treatment.

CALLS PACIFIST WOMEN PERIL

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP.)—Strenuous efforts to prevent the naturalization of women pacifists were made in the Supreme Court yesterday by the government.

Educated alien women who are pacifists and make a business of lecturing were denounced by Acting Solicitor General Wheat as extremely dangerous to the American form of government. He was fighting the naturalization at Chicago of Rosika Schwimmer, who was prominent in the sailing of the Ford peace ship during the war.

The government counsel insisted that the District Court had properly refused her naturalization when she declared in answer to a question that she would not bear arms to defend the constitution. The action of the Circuit Court of Appeals in reversing the trial court and in ordering her naturalization was vigorously attacked.

Represented by a woman, Mrs. Schwimmer listened closely to arguments on both sides. Olive H. Rabe, her counsel, contended that whether they would bear arms to defend the constitution was an improper question to ask women in naturalization proceedings. She gave Mrs. Schwimmer's age as over 50, and said her client, because of this and her sex, was incapable of bearing arms. Until Congress had provided that women should bear arms, the courts of the country and the naturalization authorities had no right, she insisted, to exclude women from citizenship simply because they refused to declare they would bear arms in defense of the constitution.

U. S. PROTESTS BAN ON FILMS

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP.)—The State Department has made representations to seven European nations which it believes have jeopardized American investments by arbitrarily restricting distribution of motion picture films made in this country.

It was said that American producers had always shown a willingness to collaborate with representatives of the industry abroad, and the view was expressed that regulations to prevent importations of films from this country must prove a hindrance to international development of the industry.

The directions for interceding were sent to State Department representatives in France, Germany, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Italy, Hungary and Spain.

It was said that this government did not intend to question such measures as might be imposed by any country for the purpose of protecting through censorship the national traditions or public morals, but pointed out that this government had adopted no restrictive regulations similar in any way to those enforced in certain foreign countries.

This country believes firmly, the statement added, that the interests of the motion picture industries in all countries are best promoted by the freest possible interchange of films based solely on the quality of the product.

BUGS BAER Says

TEX HAS THE JURY TWELVE UP.

SOME new undiluted Webster definitions, gathered up with a mop at the trial of Tex Guinan:

Trial by jury—words without music.

"Bugs" Baer

Eighteenth Amendment—a Spanish superstition.

Night Club—A hide-away for the amusement of government agents.

Liquor—Anything that will pour out of a bottle. Cider, mucilage, acid or what have you.

Sucker—Anybody who buys a passenger ticket for a train wreck.

Hostess—A traffic director for the poorhouse.

Bankroll—Cabbage leaves for the rabbits.

Broadway—A treadmill for morals.

The government charge against Tex Guinan collapsed like a peacock's tail in a rainstorm. Tex clowned her way through all the judicial paper hoops and looked around for more.

When the jury stampeded back with the verdict of not guilty, Tex requested her lawyer to look innocent.

The circe of Manhattan, the dowager empress of Insomnia and the princess of Nocturnal Disturbances is once more as pure and as sweet as a snow cleaning contract.

The federal clique did not try to prove that Tex sold liquor. What they did try to plant among the 12 geraniums in the official window box was wherever Tex was there was booze.

When the judge was summing up his subtractions, the dozen loiterers in the jury crate nodded their heads in unison like 12 berries on one stem.

While Tex's attorney was pleading for a thousand more chances for his beautiful client, the 12 good men and true nudged each other into an alert state of coma.

In fact, the jury acted as if they knew it was a good squabble and that they were glad they were not in it.

Every man on the jury team stated that he had never been in a night club.

So it looks as if Tex has 12 new customers.

Tex was dressed in a cape coat of transparent velvet, whatever that is or costs. Her hat was one of those sequin skull caps with earlaps for emergencies.

She wore a silver fox scarf around her neck and most of her shoulders, which is asking a dead fox to cover a lot of territory. The fox was biting its left hind leg, which may have been due to worry or mirth.

We cannot describe the bracelets on Tex's arms. But whoever put them there must have won the international quoit championship.

She had diamonds on her fingers that looked like the California sun setting on the United States Treasury. We never saw the northern lights so far South before.

Musmanno Bill's Friends To Fight for Success

The Minute Men are on the battlefield!

A public mass meeting in behalf of the Musmanno coal and iron police bill, which lobbyists in Harrisburg succeeded in having smothered in the Senate Judiciary General Committee, from which death it was hastily snatched when the roar of the public voice was heard, is to be held in Carnegie Music Hall, North Side, tonight.

Defenders of American rights and liberties, which have been ruthlessly and brutally invaded under the present rule of coal and iron police, are determined to fight to the last ditch to remove from the State of Pennsylvania some of the shame that is associated with the sale of police powers to private interests.

Although the Musmanno bill, which is not perfect, in that it still will permit private control of a law enforcement body, but which is a great improvement over the present method, has been revived after receiving a death sentence from powerful interests, the defenders of right are taking no chances.

Prominent clergymen, Catholic, Protestant and Jewish, representatives of the Civic Club of Allegheny County, Constitutional Rights Committee of Pittsburgh and the Pittsburgh branch of the American Civil Liberties Union will be among those participating in the movement to let the Legislature know, in the firmest terms, that a matter so vitally affecting the rights of the people must not be temporized with or endangered through the skulduggery of politicians and lobbyists.

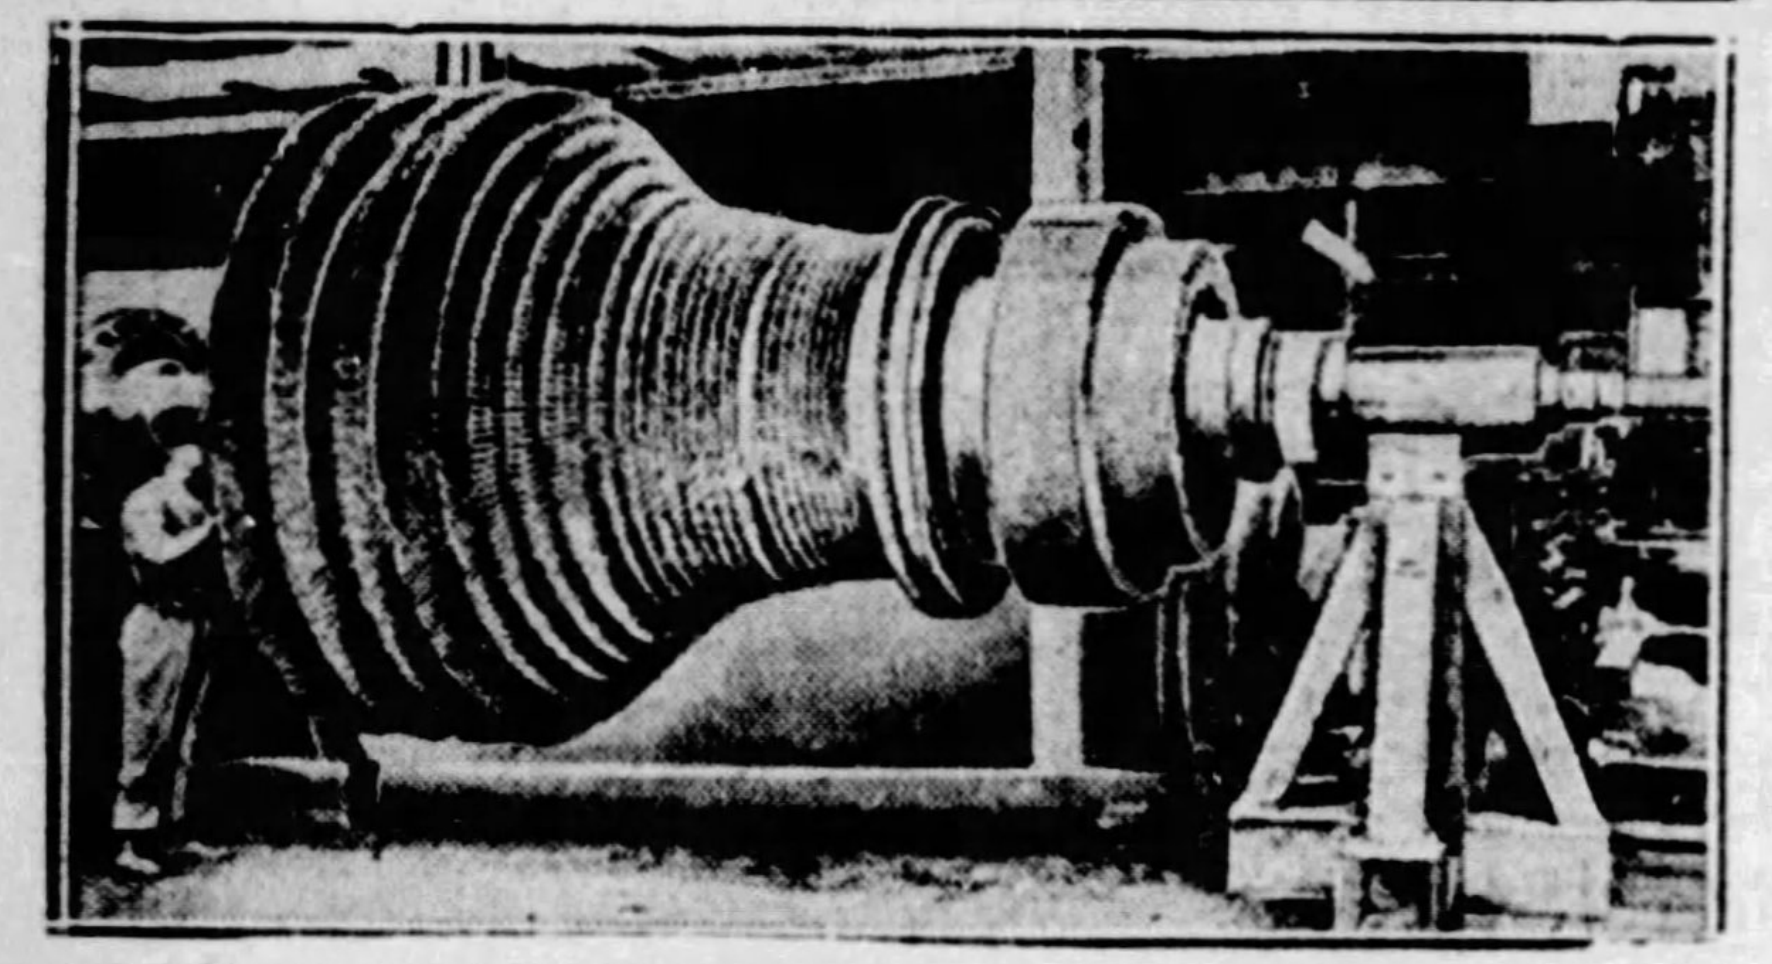
So far the Musmanno bill has not been weakened, but strengthened, and its wide-awake sponsor has been successful in preventing last-minute alterations that might endanger its adoption, with the General Assembly so near the date of adjournment. As it stands it restricts and regulates coal and iron police and is as good a bill as is possible under a system by which the state shamefully sells its authority. It raises the character of the men to be employed, limits their sphere of action and requires them to be more responsible to the state than the present force.

Supporters of the American mode of life, in view of what has happened in Harrisburg in the last week, quite properly are distrustful of those who hold the fate of this bill. So they are going to keep awake until the last minute.

The Minute Men are on the battlefield. Rally to their banner.

Do You Like Good Machinery?

Then Be Grateful for Good Oil.



A 57-TON STEAM TURBINE ROTOR.

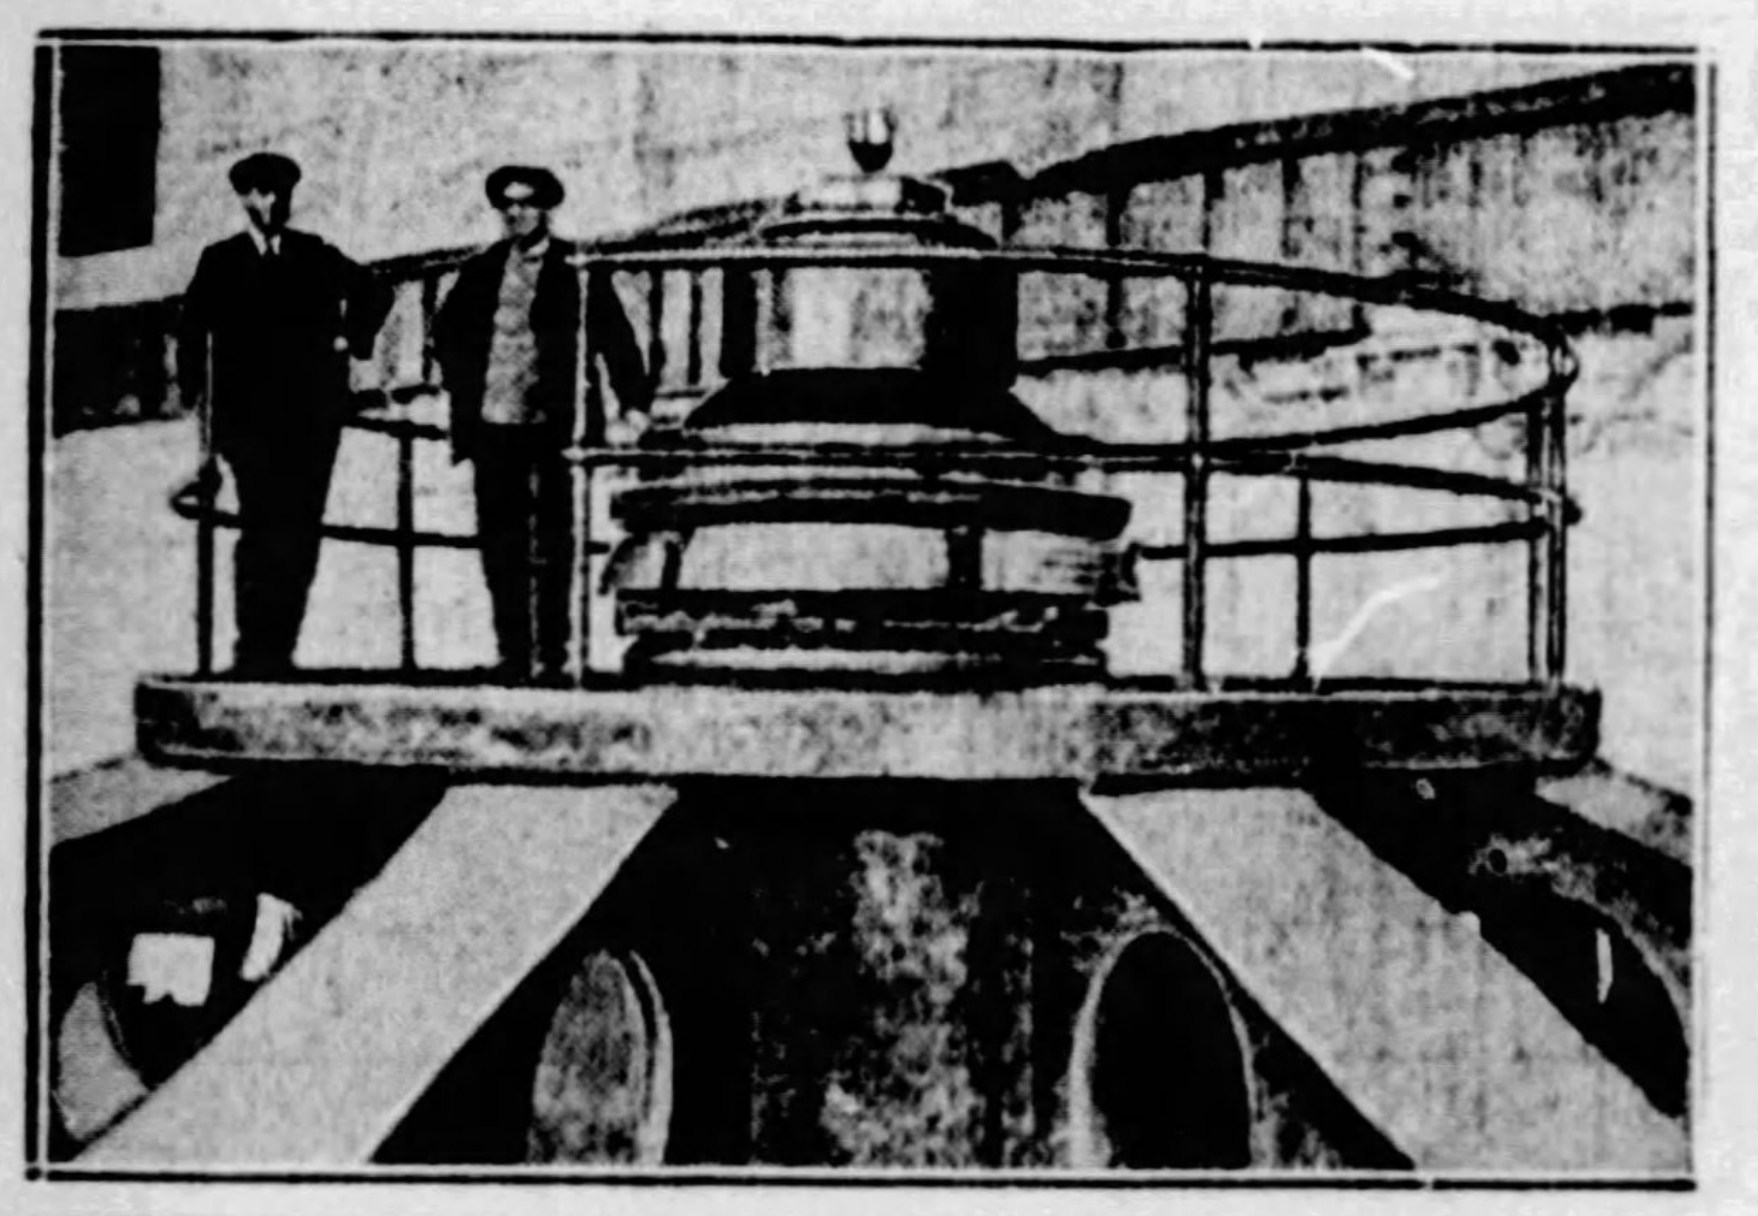
A man deserves a good horse if he will take care of it.

No man deserves to own a good machine unless he really takes care of it, and realizes the value of GOOD OIL.

To remind you of the importance of good oil, this picture of a big "rotor," most important part of a gigantic steam turbine, is published.

The size of this rotor is made clear by the man at the left. It whirls around at the rate of 10 miles a minute, 600 miles an hour.

That speed would be impossible, the metal would become red hot, without good OIL.



1,000,000 POUNDS, WHIRLING.

This one machine, doing its power producing work, day in and day out, uses TWO BARRELS OF OIL A MINUTE.

Fortunately the automobile, of which you are the captain, engineer and commander-in-chief does not call for two barrels of oil a minute. But a reasonable amount of GOOD oil that it DOES need is as important to the machinery of your car as the two barrels of oil per minute to this gigantic turbine rotor.

And remember that the "just oil" will not do. There is good oil and bad oil, "bootleg" oil, and oil made by reputable concerns that does its work properly and stands the grinding and rubbing of machinery.

Get good oil, treat your machine kindly and remember that the BEST IS THE CHEAPEST.

In London there is a mammoth dock gate, weighing 140 tons, 280,000 pounds, moving perfectly and smoothly on a thin film of oil. Without that oil, the dock gate could not be moved. The lower picture in this column shows one of the bearings in a hydro electro unit at Niagara Falls.

PROPERLY OILED this piece of machinery, weighing 1,000,000 pounds, whirls around 100 times in a minute.

And what oil is to MACHINERY kindness and courtesy are to human life and human relationship.

Tales That Are Told

His Lucky Day

A WELL-DRESSED young man sauntered across the threshold of a tailor's shop.

"Good morning!" he drawled. "I—er—I—er—believe I owe you—er—"

"Yes, sir," beamed the tailor over the top of his gold-rimmed spectacles hopefully. "Quite so, sir."

"I was going to say," continued the young man, "I—er—owe you an apology for keeping you waiting so long. So I called in to pay you—"

"Quite so, sir."

The tailor rubbed his hands delightedly. It looked like his lucky day.

"I was about to say I called in to —er—pay you the apology. Er—good-day.

Didn't Need Lessons

THE beggar looked up and down the street, made sure that no policeman was watching, then went up to a well-dressed man.

"I'm starvin', guv'nor," he whined. "Won't you give me a dollar to get a crust of bread?"

"A dollar?" said the other man in astonishment. "A dollar for a crust of bread? It won't cost you anything like so much as that."

The beggar's expression changed.

"Look 'ere, guv'nor," he said, "you stick to your own business, whatever it is. Don't you start tellin' me 'ow to run mine!"

A Better Method

WICKS was a wealthy man, and had succumbed to the motor craze and bought a small car.

His neighbor was one of the first to view the new arrival when Wicks had driven it home from the garage.

"But how on earth can you get into a thing like that?" he asked, gazing doubtfully, first at Wicks' bulk and then at the baby car.

His friend gave him a superior smile.

"One doesn't get into it," retorted the genial Wicks. "One puts it on!"

The Easiest Way

HE was a stranger in the neighborhood, and he was not feeling too sure of his whereabouts. As he was wondering what to do, a man swung round the corner.

"Excuse me," said the stranger, approaching him, "can you tell me how far it is to Little Bedstead?"

The other smiled.

"Yes. The way you're now going it's close on 25,000 miles; but if you turn round and walk in the other direction, it's about a mile and a quarter."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THERE was a kind of a wise-cracking guy that was running for mayor of a big town, and there was quite a campaign on. This fellow was counted on to entertain the crowd pretty good wherever he made a speech, and he liked to be bothered by hecklers for the other candidate, because he always got back at them pretty hot.

One night when he invited people to ask him questions, a smart aleck in the audience says, "Is it true that you run around with all the jackasses in town, just because you like that kind of company?"

"No, that ain't true, and you know it," says the candidate. "Did I ever run around with you?"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

BEWARE of Home, Sweet Home!

There is no spot more dear or delightful than Home—

But there is also no spot more dangerous!

The very sweetness and security of a home can become a quicksand in which characters sink to their doom.

They can smother with comfort.

They can strangle through soft, stubborn domination.

They can sap honor and courage by their snug protection.

Not all homes do this—but many homes are doing exactly this. And any home, unless most wisely managed, will do this to the beings who shelter within it.

Selfishness, cowardice, smugness, intolerance, lazziness and rudeness breed in homes faster than in any other spot on earth.

They breed in homes because home life is sheltered from criticism and conflict. We don't have to have "company manners" in the home. As a consequence we're apt to discard all manners. We cease struggling to think and act like human beings. We let ourselves drift into the lazy, sluggish habits of contented animals. We lose our man pride, our ambition, our sense of responsibility. We are trapped by that very sweetness and safety which we have created for ourselves.

Look at the ardent, eager faces of young lovers, dream fires within their eyes. Then look at the dull, smug faces of those same lovers, 30 years hence. That is what too-much-home can do to human character.

Sentimentality flourishes in homes and then proves as deadly as a plague.

Lazy, disagreeable women are rendered immune from criticism because mothers are supposed to be holy—

Stupid, domineering men are allowed to have their way because fathers are supposed to command respect—

Shameful conditions, destructive of all human decency, are tolerated because marriage is supposed to be sacred—

And young lives are sacrificed to the demands of stupid, selfish elders because children are supposed to be much to their parents.

If home were open to public inspection, like sweat shops and stockyards, such conditions could not continue. The very privacy of the home is its chief menace. Shut doors, shut minds.

There is a great cry that homes are passing.

To anyone who has enjoyed the rare privilege of living in a noble home, such a suggestion must bring heartache.

YET THE HUMAN RACE WILL PROBABLY BE IMMEASURABLY BENEFITTED IF HOMES, AS WE KNOW THEM, DO PASS.

We will benefit by being forced out of our homes as our remote parents benefitted by being forced out of their caves.

We will be made to see life beyond our four walls and adapt our characters to that wider vista.

Then homes will become what they should be, rest stations on the road of experience, not dug-outs in which selfish humanity may hide for the protection of its cowardice and stupidity.

THE FULL MOON

By Garrett P. Serviss

"We are having a discussion. Please end it for us because it disturbs the neighbors. Frank says that the moon is 'full' only for an instant; Charlie maintains that it is full from 3 to 5 hours, and Henry asserts that the fullness last perhaps 3 or 4 days. No Volstead or anti-Volstead in this—F. A. S., New York."

THE moon like an experienced liquor carrier could probably defy you to prove that she is "full" at any time. She would be able to satisfy any meticulous judge or jury that she is slandered every month when she is called "full" and that if she ever is full, it doesn't matter because nobody sees her then. And, in truth, the moon seems ashamed when she gets in a position to be full, because then she always hides her face in the shadow of the earth.

To be really "full" the moon would need to be in an exact line between the center of the sun and the observer on the earth. This only happens when there is a lunar eclipse, which occurs only two or three times in a year at the most. Nearly always when the moon is called full it is only "half-seas-over," though it may look like a case of "full" to the uncritical observer. You may be certain that the moon is mathematically full during an eclipse, but you could not convict her on "eyeside evidence" for she is only "constructively" full, anyhow.

Your "Frank" apparently has a telescope, and is skilful in using it, for only in that way could he reach the conviction that even when the moon seems to the ordinary eye to be full, the condition lasts but for a moment. The line of sunshine advances over the moon's surface from west to east at the rate of about 13 degrees every 24 hours. This would be something over ten miles an hour. This shifting of the shadows can be observed with a telescope where there are mountains and other irregularities of level traversed by the sunrise line, and thus an approximate estimate could be made of the moment when the light embraced the entire visible face of the moon. But there would be no exactitude about it. If the moon's globe were perfectly smooth and spherical, the observation would be facilitated.

Upon the whole, then, although "Frank" is undoubtedly right in affirming that the moon's state of fullness lasts but an instant, "Charlie" is quite excusable for thinking that it lasts hours, because with the naked eye the shifting of the shadows is unnoticeable in any shorter time. But "Henry" must be a careless observer of heavenly sights if he really thinks so that the moon continues for three or four days to present the appearance of being full. In three days the edge of the unlighted part of the moon would advance more than 750 miles over its surface and the whole circumference is only about 6,738 miles.

You will have noticed, of course, that if we were talking according to strict meaning of words, we should have to admit that not only is the duration of the full phase very brief, but it is an infinitesimal point of time. At best it could not last longer than the time required for a light-wave to melt on Cynthia's silver cheek.

Bible Passages

Doctrine of Wisdom

(Proverbs 9; 1-12)

WISDOM hath builded her house, she hath hewn out her seven pillars:

She hath killed her beats; she hath mingled her wine; she hath also furnished her table.

She hath sent forth her maidens: she crieth upon the highest places of the city,

Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither: as for him that wanteth understanding, she saith to him,

Come, eat of my bread, and drink of the wine which I have mingled.

Forsake the foolish, and live; and go in the way of understanding.

He that reproveth a scorner getteth to himself shame: and he that rebuketh a wicked man getteth himself a blot.

Reprove not a scorner, lest he hate thee: rebuke a wise man, and he will love thee.

Give instruction to a wise man, and he will be yet wiser: teach a just man, and he will increase in learning.

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: and the knowledge of the holy is understanding.

For by me thy days shall be multiplied, and the years of thy life shall be increased.

If thou be wise, thou shalt be wise for thyself: but if thou scornest, thou alone shalt bear it.

The Sweets of Song

THE sweets of song lie not alone
In liquid melody,
In hunting words or birdlike tone,
Though matchless these may be
As, flutelike, on the air they float,
Rare gifts from some enchanted throat.

For song has deeper charm it leaves
Upon the listening ear;
With memory's magic web it weaves
A thralldom still more dear;
Swift, sweet as sudden April rain,
The spell that brings the past again.

Old scenes come back, old friends return
When once-loved strains are heard,
Old hopes flame up, old longings burn
And wistful dreams are stirred;
In these bright memories that throng
We reap the subtlest sweets of song!

Delivery Men

By Herbert Kaufman

RATZKOWSKI, the Parisian art dealer, who began as a store clerk, didn't realize he was waiting upon Mrs. Opportunity in person, when a plainly dressed little woman approached his counter at the Bon Marche and requested samples of various dress materials.

His kindness and patience made such an impression upon the "customer" that, a few months afterwards, he was promoted, at the age of seventeen, to assistant silk buyer in then the greatest retail establishment on earth.

The lady in question happened to be Madame Bouccicault, proprietress of the Bon Marche.

Like all shrewd merchants, she had the gift of recognizing talent in the bud.

J. H. Barringer, under whose charge National Cash Register has advanced in leaps and bounds, himself leaped in a single bound from a minor post to captaincy of the company.

Barringer was John H. Patterson's private secretary. One day, Patterson instructed him to transmit certain orders, which the other considered detrimental to the best interest of the concern, and didn' hesitate to express his mind.

Patterson momentarily studied the plain-speaking youngster, then abruptly suggested that he handle the situation according to his own ideas.

"But I haven't any authority," Barringer demurred.

Five minutes later, he held the credentials of vice president and general manager—and still carries 'em.

"Yes-men" and lickspittles, please note.

A tyro collector, destined to head one of the country's greatest industrial units, showed the stuff he was made of when his concern sent him after a dead-beat, who had included a thoroughbred bull in the collateral for some agricultural implements.

The debtor protested he couldn't pay.

"Then I'll take the bull."

"The bull's dead," said the farmer.

"Show me where he's buried and we'll dig up the bone — they'll bring something at the fertilizer plant."

"Oh hell," grinned the farmer, "if you're that sort of a go-getter I'd better settle." And paid the bill.

If merit were not the generally deciding factor in promotion, commerce would be crowded with bankruptcies, and dividends would be as scarce as auks' eggs.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 13.—The metropolis is an ideal haven for the international wastrel. When he has fled from bailiffs in all the world capitals he drifts to New York for peace and rest. Just as most people secretly love the rogue, so does New York idolize the spendthrift.

Debt is no disgrace whatever in this city of dreadful debt. I was reminded of this today while walking with a friend. He stopped in at a magnificent apartment on the fashionable East Side. The occupant has, newspaper dispatches show, exhausted his credit not only in Europe but the remote Far East.

Yet here he was living in high splendor in an exclusive area with a valet and butler attending his wants. He had arrived two days before and as he smilingly and frankly admitted was "stoney." He found no trouble in establishing new lines of credit in a city in which he was heavily in debt.

The most famous of the spendthrifts come from excellent families. It is the family name upon which they trade. Creditors know that in so many instances relatives will come to the rescue in the emergency to prevent court action.

One of the most famous spendthrifts is celebrated not only as an artist but a Romeo. He has married several gifted and wealthy ladies, run their bank accounts raggedy and swaggered off to new triumphs. I was on the Midnight Frolic Roof with a large party in the pre-Volstead days.

He came in with the flame of the moment. His financial lapses were discussed around the table. There was only one man other than myself—I'm a Scotch boy—who did not hold his I. O. U. for varying amounts. I noticed the high flyer was cutting into the grape at $8 a quart.

At the conclusion of his snack, he called the man at our table to whom he was not indebted to one side for a whispered conversation. He got $100, paid his bill and toddled on his way. When I contrast him with some hard working clerk who must mortgage his soul to pay his wife's hospital bill I get pretty mad.

A fearful price in human health is paid for New York's itch for speed. More than 75 workers are medically doomed from a disease called silicosis (that sounds like a columnist's malady), brought on from inhaling rock dust while digging subterranean tunnels. Some 2,000 other workers are imperiled by exposure to the same malady and not one has the protection of the State Compensation law.

The movable electric sign flashing news around the Times Building has added to the Broadway gambling fever and made hotel rooms overlooking any side of the building difficult to acquire. The gamblers collect only for the first show of messages—they are about the same all evening—but provide many variants for wagering. One may bet the letter E will appear so many times in a sentence or that Z will not appear at all. And so on.

"You recently hooted," postcards V. J. J., "at fried parsnips. Rightly cooked even Brillat-Savaran called it a leading vegetable dish. I suppose you turn up your nose at caviar!"

O, caviar is all right except a little seedy.

One of the after theater high spots is a wax museum exhibit at the conclusion of which it is announced there is an exhibit "For Men Only." The other evening a flapper remained to see it and was told politely it was not for girlish young eyes.

"Go ahead," she sneered. "You'll get fat debauching me."

Excited lady with a lorgnette and wearing a crepitant skirt just reprimanded sharply by a crossing cop on Thirty-fourth street: "Isn't he aggravoking?"

And that recalls the choleric old gentleman in our town who yelled to the owner of a plunging and barking dog: "Call off your dog off or I'll knock off his head off!"

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

YOU may be located in a large city in which you are unable to make the progress that you expected.

All that you can see ahead is the hustle, for practically all of your spare time before and after working hours is taken up commuting.

When you left the little old home town you expected to make a great success in some large city.

But somehow you have not registered as you had planned.

Perhaps you are a small town person, unfitted for the larger place.

Few of those who go to the big city do more than submerge.

They are covered up by the many who are better prepared or seem to get a better break.

If your ability is not above par, don't expect recognition in a big city.

There is less competition in a smaller place.

It is the glamor and excitement that thrill you about a big city.

You forget how heartless and cold it can be to a stranger, and you may feel like a stranger for a long time, perhaps always.

It might be well for you to return to the old home town.

There the ability you have, which amounts to little in the large city, might bring you a certain degree of success in a small place.
